

Machinists May Return To Plants

Resumption in Pacific Area Depends Upon Response to Orders From Washington

Strikes Called Off

Pittsburgh, San Diego Threats Are Ended by Agreement

(By The Associated Press)
Resumption of full-speed production on $500,000,000 worth of defense shipbuilding in the San Francisco Bay area depended today on the response of striking A.F.L. machinists to telegraphed instructions from their international executive council in Washington to go back to their jobs in 11 shipyards.

Possibility that the machinists might go to work Monday was voiced by Harry Hook, San Francisco business agent, who set a meeting Sunday to consider the council action. He said a "full and democratic discussion" would be held, followed by a secret ballot.

Action on this biggest obstacle so far interposed to the all-out ship construction effort came last night in deference to a "direct request" from President Roosevelt, the executive council announced.

At the same time the two remaining major threats to military airplane output were ended.

A strike scheduled for midnight at two Pittsburgh plants of the airplane propeller division of the Curtiss Wright Company was called off at request of the defense mediation board.

And the A.F.L. Machinists Union at the big Consolidated Aircraft Corp. plant in San Diego announced ratification of new contract terms by a nine-to-one vote, removing possibility of a walkout against Consair, which holds $700,000,000 in bomber orders for the army, navy and Britain.

Terms Not Announced
Terms of the two-year contract were not announced immediately, but workers who voted said it provided an increase from 50 to 55 cents in the hourly minimum wage, a modified union shop and a military service clause. The union had asked a 60-cent minimum, with an automatic raise to 70 cents after six months service.

A union official said Consolidated's 14,000 hourly-paid workers would benefit to the extent of $7,000,000 in the two years.

The machinists voted Tuesday on a proposal to empower their negotiators to call a strike, but it was announced that result of that ballot would not be made public.

Newly approved Senate curbs on defense production stoppages went to the House military affairs committee, meanwhile, and the House group, though divided on how drastically it should act, prophesied agreement on "some kind of bill" before nightfall.

The Senate late yesterday approved the Connally measure authorizing federal seizure of strategic plants if production was halted or threatened by a strike, lockout or "other cause," providing that mediation had failed or that either party or both had rejected mediation.

Authority to strike at three Connecticut plants of the American Brass Company, working on defense orders, has been voted by C.I.O. employees at Waterbury, Torrington and Ansonia, a union organizer reported last night.

It was announced, however, that the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union would take no further action pending a mediation meeting Tuesday with the management and a representative of the state labor commissioner. The union asks a 10-cent hourly wage increase, and has rejected a four-cent offer. Union sources said present minimum rates in "a great many" classifications were 60 cents hourly for men, 50 cents for women.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the A.F.L. International Longshoremen's Association, agreed yesterday to await possible government action before calling for spread of a New York longshore strike to Galveston, Baltimore and Houston.

The New York walkout, Ryan said, was a protest against the loss of stevedoring jobs involved in the government acquisition of Morgan Line ships for the defense and aid-to-Britain shipping pool.

Orders Finger Printing
Washington, June 13 (P)—President Roosevelt made another move to check up on subversive elements in the government service today by ordering that all employees in the federal civil service whose fingerprints are not now on file with the government submit to fingerprinting.

Bank Is Robbed
Bridgeport, Conn., June 13 (P)—The Morris Plan Bank on Bank street was held up and robbed a few minutes before noon today by a robber described by onlookers as of "distinguished appearance." First reports said several thousand dollars were taken. The robber escaped.

New Justice

Senator James F. Byrnes was nominated yesterday to the United States Supreme Court by President Roosevelt and his appointment was confirmed immediately by the Senate. Justice Stone was named Chief Justice and Attorney General Robert Jackson was nominated to the Supreme Court. The latter two nominations were referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee in routine practice.

C.I.O. Officials Will Help Purge Pacific Leadership

R. T. Frankenstein Would Cast Out Subversive Elements From Auto Union

Los Angeles, June 13 (P)—A score of top ranking C. I. O. officials are coming to Los Angeles in response to Richard T. Frankenstein's call to purge the Pacific coast leadership of the United Automobile Workers of subversive elements.

Frankenstein, national head of the aviation division of the C. I. O. U. A. W., declared in a radio address their purpose is to "clean out Communists from positions where they could dominate C. I. O. policies in the U. A. W. organizing drive on the Pacific coast."

He reiterated his declaration that the five-day strike at North American Aviation plant called by local union officials during negotiations before the National Defense Mediation Board at Washington, was "a wildcat and outlaw strike."

"I condemn the irresponsible acts of the local leaders of the striking U. A. W. who surrendered our union to the Communist Party and who sought to use its strength to precipitate a strike against our national union, our national government and our national defense," he declared.

Frankenstein has suspended officers of the local union and members of its negotiating committee, along with five U. A. W. international representatives. He announced he had filed charges against Lew H. Michener, U. A. W. west coast regional director, with national C. I. O. headquarters.

Next objective of the U. A. W. aircraft organizing drive, Frankenstein said, will be Douglas Aircraft Co., with some 20,000 production workers as against 9,000 at North American.

Among early arriving C. I. O. executives was Walter Smethurst, Frankenstein's assistant in the National Aircraft Workers' organizing drive.

Smethurst said a constitutional amendment to forbid any member of the Communist Party from holding office in the union would be submitted to the national U. A. W. convention in Buffalo, N. Y., July 29.

Eric A. Nicol, a representative of the United States Department of Labor, arrived to direct relations at the North American plant, taken over Monday by the army under President Roosevelt's orders.

Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branshaw, army air corps procurement officer in charge of operations, said "production is fully at normal now."

Low Bids Submitted
Albany, N. Y., June 13 (P)—Publishers Printing Company, New York city, with a total low bid of $192,133.56, submitted the minimum prices today on four of 10 groups of state printing for 1941-42.

Judge Murray Hulbert Weighs Situation. Says Some Concessions Are Necessary

None Attends

No One in Official Status Attends From City, County

New York, June 13 (Special)—The question of whether the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad be continued in operation or sold or dismantled was seriously considered in United States District Court here yesterday, where a meeting of creditors was held before Judge Murray Hulbert, who has charge of the reorganization of the line.

The hearing was on a show-cause order obtained by the County of Sullivan, which is, according to William G. Birmingham of Liberty, attorney for County Treasurer Roy C. Johnson, in dire straits because of its inability to collect taxes from the railroad, which has been in process of reorganization for four years. Aware of the seriousness of the situation and present to protect their interests were representatives of the nine counties through which the line passes, as well as town representatives, shippers, manufacturers and financial interests who would be adversely affected if the line should cease running.

Mr. Birmingham stated that Sullivan county is not desirous of putting the line out of business but that it must get its tax money or go into default. He enlarged upon the local situation and claimed the county was forced to take this move. He said that if no way to pay the taxes could be found the line should be sold.

Essential to Communities
The attorney for the trustee of the line, Elbert Oakes, pointed out that the railroad is essential to the communities through which it passes and that now, because of the defense situation, it is of special importance. As to the taxes in question, they were assessed at a time when the railroad was doing about $8,000,000 gross business instead of about $5,000,000, as at present. He held that the taxes are grossly excessive.

"I doubt," added the attorney, "that the railroad can be operated on a $5,500,000 income without paying taxes. It needs about $6,000,000 to break even."

"The business could, however, be built up by more traffic, and the people along its route could provide it."

"Mr. Birmingham suggests a meeting of creditors. Well—the towns are creditors. They are prime creditors. We suggest that your honor ascertain the sentiment of the people along the line as to whether they consider the railroad essential."

J. E. Waid, attorney representing banking interests concerned, declared the situation to be "simply impossible." There is not enough traffic to pay operating expenses, he said. The best test, he pointed out, is the experience of the past and that shows a constant erosion of our interest. He urged the court to weigh the prospect of discontinuing the line.

Judge Hulbert deplored the fact that railroads have to carry a heavy burden of building and maintaining roadbeds while their competition, truck traffic, has concrete roads built by the state at practically no cost to it.

"Any how many people along the routes of railroads give their business to truckers rather than to railroads? I don't blame them. But someone should have given thought to the fact that all this would result in railroads facing failure."

And now the future and very existence of a railroad is in my lap. I won't shirk my responsibility. Nor will I sit back and confiscate anyone's property. If the people along the line want the railroad to be continued, they must make a contribution to that end."

He adjourned the hearing to June 30 with the warning that a committee of those interested get together.

Allies Close in Upon Beirut

Cairo Says Forces Are Resisted

Peace Gesture Toward Vichy Troops Is Not Accepted; Invaders Near Damascus

Denies Aggression

British Say Advance Is Only to Hold Off the Germans

London, June 13 (P)—Rebuffed in a peace gesture, British and Free French in Lebanon and Syria were authoritatively reported today to be closing in on Beirut and broadening the base for perhaps the final assault on Damascus.

A high source in London declared that forces advancing along the Mediterranean shore of the Bible lands had pushed north of Sidon to a point within 20 miles of Beirut, Lebanese capital, while Free French forces had taken two villages east of Kisseou, facing Damascus 10 miles away.

The Middle East command at Cairo acknowledged that the allies had been "temporarily delayed in certain sectors by resistance of Vichy troops," but "had by yesterday evening made further progress in all sectors of their penetration."

The Vichy government was answering with the arms at its command a British overture through Madrid suggesting that to save French blood it should instruct defense forces to offer no further resistance to measures taken by the allies "to prevent the enemy from using Syria as a base of operations against them."

The British disavowed any territorial designs against French territory and declared again that the invasion by De Gaulle and British imperial forces—Vichy's avowedly notwithstanding—was necessitated to counter German ambitions.

Notes Are Published
The exchange of notes—a French protest at the outset of the fighting and the British reply—were handled through Vichy and London ambassadors at Madrid. They were published today.

Reuters, British news agency, said it was understood in Cairo that the allies had practically surrounded Damascus and that parleys between the opposing forces with view to avoiding bloodshed had delayed entry into the capital of Syria.

Damascus, with a population of nearly 200,000, reputedly is the world's oldest inhabited city. Despite the British reports of the imminent threat to the city, an Associated Press representative was able at 1:10 p. m., local time, to send a dispatch which told of government measures to assure the safety of French residents of Syria and Lebanon.

This dispatch said, however, that British and De Gaulle columns were only a few miles away.

An authoritative London source said that Free French forces before Damascus had taken two villages east of Kisseou, that is, south or southeast of Damascus. The places were not identified.

There was no confirmation of a report that Free Frenchmen already might be fighting in the suburbs of the city although a

Australians Use Cold Steel Against Machine-Gun Area

Artillery Barrage Usually Precedes Troop Attack in Syria; Toughness Is Attribute

By EDWARD KENNEDY

With the allied forces in Syria, June 12 (Delayed) (P)—Tough Australian fighters with cold steel wiped out Algerian and Senegalese machine-gun nests hastily organized to harass the allied columns in their drive toward Damascus.

Wherever stubborn resistance has been encountered the invaders laid down a concentrated artillery fire and then sent in bayonet-swinging Australians to clean up.

Artillery cracked the twin mountain forts at Kila and Kayam on the first and second days of the campaign but it was the Aussies who roared in to put the finishing touches on the operation by mopping up machine-gun nests.

At Kayam, a lieutenant and six men—all amateur boxers from the gold mining region of western Australia—snaked up on the fort on the first day of the invasion. Armed with tommy guns, they scaled the wall and knocked out the machine-gun nests inside.

After intense fighting they were driven to a blockhouse at the corner of the fort, deciding they had insufficient numbers to capture the garrison. They sued a pick axe to knock a hole in a concrete wall two feet thick and got out through it.

I crawled up later and from the hill saw the attack open on Kila, which fell later that same day. Kayam was not taken until Monday.

The whole Jebel Apher region west of Kila is occupied by British cavalry patrols. This area is peopled by the Shi'ite Moslem sect, whose religious and political leader, Achmed Ellassad Bey, greeted the British with open arms.

Hundreds of French colonials have been captured by the allied columns. Despite the resistance, French officers who fell into British hands mostly showed signs of relief that the fight was over for them and commented that they had merely been "performing our duty and preserving our honor."

Vassar Student Sought
Cambridge, Mass., June 13 (P)—Search for attractive Anne Greene, 19-year-old Vassar sophomore and daughter of a Harvard University professor, entered its second day today with police reporting few clues to her whereabouts. Captain John Canney said, however, that he expected the girl to turn up "within a few days."

Professor William C. Greene, her father, said his daughter took the family automobile Wednesday night saying she intended to return a typewriter to a friend, but that she did not arrive at the friend's house.

Pilot's Blame Considered
Washington, June 13 (P)—The Civil Aeronautics Board said today "failure of the pilot to take the proper degree of care" was the probable cause of the crash of a transport plane near Atlanta, Ga., last February 28, which resulted in the death of eight persons. The board criticized the "failure of the captain in charge of the flight to exercise the proper degree of care by not checking his altimeters to determine whether both were correctly set and properly functioning" before starting to land.

Increase over previous day $16,564,455.88. Gold assets $22,593,329,828.64.

Stolen Car Recovered
Investigating a report that a car had been abandoned and had been standing on the old Springtown road all day, blocking traffic, Deputy Sheriff Segelken found that the car had been stolen the night before from the Kingston Scrap Iron and Metal Co. When recovered the car was out of gas and one fender had been damaged.

French Slow Advance in Syria

Vichy claimed British and "Free French" forces had been checked in their drive toward Damascus and Beirut (arrows at left), while the invaders admitted encountering stiff resistance. In the north three advancing British columns (arrows) were said in allied dispatches to have reached Deir-ze-sor and Ras-el-ain. Aleppo apparently was the objective of these forces.

Defense Rests Its Case in Trial of Ellenville Negress

Jury Is Expected to Get Case Late Today After Summations by Both Sides

Helen Bennett, Ellenville negress, charged with having set fire to her apartment at 202 Canal street on May 3, last, was cross examined at the opening of County Court this morning and at the conclusion of her examination the case was rested.

Judge J. Edward Conway then recessed court for 15 minutes in order to take care of a matter in Children's Court and announced that summations would then be taken up. It was expected that A. J. Cook, Jr., counsel for defendant, would take at least an hour to sum up his side of the case and the prosecution will take a similar time. The case will no be submitted to the jury until late in the afternoon following Judge Conway's charge.

On the stand this morning Miss Bennett was cross-examined by District Attorney Haver and admitted that she had been in the apartment about 10 o'clock at night preceding discovery of the fire in the place at 4:55 the next morning. She said she had light-

London Hears Berlin's Demands Upon Russia Are Insupportable

London, June 13 (P)—British dreams of a Soviet Russian-German agreement bordering on active warfare were nourished today by repeated but unconfirmable reports that Berlin demands on Russia were of such magnitude that acceptance would loosen Moscow's military hold on the Baltic and Black Seas.

Informed quarters said discussions between Sir Stafford Cripps, British ambassador to Moscow, and government leaders here were "primarily concerned with Russian-German relations."

It must be emphasized that reports of disagreement between Berlin Moscow and Nazi concentrations on the Soviet border conceivably fit into the pattern of the British diplomatic nerve war which, by scaring Russia, it is hoped here might force the U. S. S. R. into more friendly relations with Britain and eventual collaboration in the war.

Reliable sources said that demands made by the Germans had been received in Moscow and were under study.

Sir Stafford reached London by air from the Soviet capital Wednesday for what was described as a trip in line with Britain's policy of having her envoys report periodically and to reestablish contact with the home government.

The informants today refused to discuss whether an editorial in the Times of London hinting that Sir Stafford would not return to the U. S. S. R. was officially inspired. The Times editorial said "it may well be asked whether there is not at the present juncture a more urgent call nearer home on Sir Stafford's exceptional capacities."

Survivors' Stories Are Held Clear

U. S. Action Will Be Withheld Until All Reports Are Received on Robin Moor

Protest Will Come

U. S. Note Will Demand Restitution Be Made for Lives, Property

Washington, June 13 (P)—Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, asserted today that the facts in the sinking of the Robin Moor were beyond dispute and indirectly accused Germany of violating an international treaty on submarine warfare.

The evidence of 11 survivors of the sunken American merchant vessel was very clear and there could be no dispute as to the facts, he told his press conference.

As to what action the United States will take, Welles said he would withhold a considered statement until the full depositions of the 11 survivors were received from American officials in Brazil and were investigated here.

An account of their testimony, however, issued by the state department yesterday, charged that the Robin Moor was sunk in the South Atlantic on May 21 by a German submarine which gave the passengers and crew 30 minutes to abandon the vessel before it was torpedoed and shelled.

Welles was asked for comment on the statement of a German spokesman in Berlin that "We won't be buffaloed by American and English discussions concerning the Robin Moor" and that "whenever any ship with contraband sails for England we'll shoot at it."

Welles replied that the question of what constitutes contraband is one of the most controversial in all the world and that the American government had never acquiesced in contraband definitions of either side in the present war.

The United States will lodge a vigorous protest with Germany on the sinking of the Robin Moor, it was learned authoritatively today, citing the evidence of survivors that the vessel was torpedoed deliberately by a Nazi U-boat.

The state department's note, informed quarters predicted, will also demand that restitution be made for the loss of American life and property—35 persons are still missing—and that assurances be given against repetition of the incident.

There was intense interest, meanwhile, in what President Roosevelt might have to say on the subject when he holds his regular press conference today. When the sinking was first reported, Mr. Roosevelt asked the nation to suspend judgment until the facts were known, but yesterday the White House said there seemed to be "no longer any reason" for that.

Ample Eyewitnesses
At the state department, it was said, the preliminary report on how the Robin Moor went to the bottom provided ample eyewitness testimony for an immediate demand on the German government for a full explanation.

The report was made by Walter J. Lithicum, U. S. consul at Pernambuco, Brazil, who spent almost five hours getting the accounts of the 11 known survivors after they reached the South American port aboard the rescue ship Osorio.

It was a direct and economical recital, but packed with drama. It told how the plainly-marked American merchantman was stopped by the submarine in the South Atlantic on May 21, her identity confirmed, and the passengers given 30 minutes to abandon ship.

It described how she was torpedoed amidships. Then it gave a final picture—the surfaced U-boat pumping some 30-odd shells into the sinking ship, and afterwards destroying floating wreckage with gunfire.

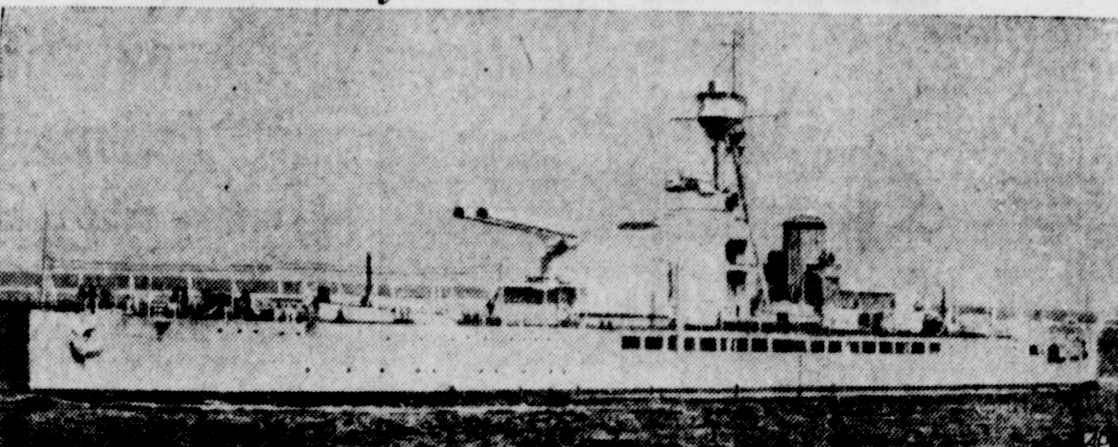

The submarine, survivors related, had a laughing cow painted on the conning tower for insignia, and also the name Loricke or LORICKKE. Her commander spoke poor English.

They were able to make such close observations because when the Robin Moor was halted at 8 a. m. that day, the submarine directed by blinker light signal that a boat be sent with papers.

A lifeboat in charge of the first mate rowed a mile and a half to the waiting U-boat, as ordered. There the mate personally appeared.

The British navy's monitor, Terror, (above) which mounted among other armament two 15-inch high-elevation guns, but displaced only 7,200 tons and drew but 11 feet, was sunk by Axis dive-bombers off the Libyan coast, it was announced by the Royal Navy at Alexandria. The Terror took part in the bombardment which helped shatter Italian shore defenses in Libya.

Jayne Makes Query

Announcement of a forthcoming amended order for elimination based on certain changes suggested at the hearing Thursday caused L. A. Jayne, New York Central Railroad engineer, to ask about the time the railroad would have to prepare and submit plans for the elimination. Following issuance of the order in April the railroad was given 90 days to prepare such plans and Mr. Jayne asked whether the delay caused by the hearing called for yesterday would permit an extension. Mr. O'Connor then stated that this would be taken into consideration and the new order would be made as soon as possible.

Mr. Jayne said the railroad was at a standstill until after the present hearing, since a change might be ordered following the hearing. However, he said the railroad would not take long after receipt of the amended order. Mayor Heislman asked the railroad to do all in its power to create a design of elimination walls and bridge so as to have a good looking job. He said the elimination was in the center of the city and naturally a good looking structure was desired.

Mr. Jayne said the railroad would be glad to receive any suggestions as to appearance which the mayor might submit and all suggestions would be considered. The hearing Thursday was called for the purpose of receiving objections made by the city and also the railroad to the cutting off of or "dead-ending" of both Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenue at Broadway. The plan upon which the order of April 3 was made called for the "dead-ending" of both streets and with access to those streets at present grade from two new streets to be made. One street would run from Greenkill avenue to Cedar street just west of Broadway and the other would run from Railroad avenue to Cornell street just east of Broadway. Greenkill avenue and Railroad avenue would not join Broadway at the depressed grade.

The city objected on the grounds that elimination of these two intersecting streets would throw additional traffic over to the junction of Broadway with Cedar and Cornell streets which today are congested at certain hours of the day. Any additional traffic diverted to those streets would cause a serious tie-up of the city maintained.

Figures were produced showing that from a count made on May 21 from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. there were 2,476 vehicles flowing through Cedar street; 1,981 through Cornell street; 2,024 through Greenkill avenue; 948 through Thomas street and 1,133 through Railroad avenue.

The city maintained that by addition of the 2,024 vehicles which used Greenkill avenue and the 1,133 which used Railroad avenue to the already heavy traffic on Cornell street and Cedar street traffic on Broadway would be seriously hampered.

Edward I. McCaffery, consulting engineer for the city of Kingston, told the commissioner that at present there are 43 buses which come out of Railroad avenue and five which enter. At Thomas street 79 buses enter and 35 make an exit from there. It was suggested that by depressing Railroad avenue to the new level of Broadway north bound traffic could enter Railroad avenue by making a right turn without obstructing traffic or creating a danger point. Traffic which now flows out of Greenkill avenue could also make a right turn south to Broadway if that street were depressed. This would eliminate much of the added burden to Broadway at Cornell street. Cedar streets which must use those streets under the commission's present plan.

Suggests High Bridge

It was at this point that Commissioner O'Connor suggested that traffic might be served by a high bridge at present level from Greenkill avenue to connect Railroad avenue parallel to the railroad tracks. This would permit an exit from Railroad avenue to Greenkill avenue and then through a new street to be run parallel to Broadway from Greenkill avenue to Cedar street. There traffic would make a right turn to go south and another right turn to go east to Broadway traffic. This would eliminate traffic from Railroad avenue going up to Cornell street over the new street and then being compelled to make left turns to get into the south bound traffic stream.

This scheme was admittedly a more safe plan but Mr. McCaffery said that even with this there would be added traffic at Cedar street and Cornell street to enter the city and congestion there would be "unbearable." He urged the opening of Greenkill avenue and Railroad direct to the depressed grade of Broadway.

Mr. O'Connor said that safety of the traveling public was to be considered and not only local traffic which was familiar with the situation and streets in that locality but the out of town traveling public unfamiliar with the situation must be considered. Traffic flowing at the rate of 25,000 a day over Broadway should be made safe since it was a main thoroughfare. To have traffic enter or egress from Broadway to side streets which were depressed would create a traffic hazard. Thomas street is to be made an entering street to Broadway at the partially depressed level.

Congestion Is Discussed

It was suggested by the city that parking regulations and traffic lights might aid the congestion at Broadway and the intersection of Cedar street and Cornell street but that this would not solve the problem of added traffic if Greenkill avenue and Railroad avenue traffic was shunted to that intersection by the closing of the present existing streets. It was suggested that traffic ordinances would be made to regulate traffic at Greenkill avenue and Railroad avenue intersections.

Commissioner O'Connor replied that the present administration could do this but it was no assurance that some future administration might not change the ordinances and create a hazard there. Mr. O'Connor said that the commission was anxious to get a good safe elimination plan and that at all times the safety of the traveling public must be considered.

"We are going to spend a million dollars on a postage stamp here as compared to the jobs we have to do," said the commissioner and it was advisable to consider at all times the safety of the traveling public even though some local traffic or local business might be inconvenienced slightly.

Construction of a bridge to connect Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenue at grade would cost about $80,000 to $100,000 more than the April 3 plan for the construction of the necessary new streets, Commissioner O'Connor said.

Mayor Heislman said that he knew the commissioner would work out the best possible plan. He agreed that the commission plan perhaps was the safer one but he said his chief objection was on the grounds of newly created congestion at Cedar and Cornell streets if Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenues were closed.

Stresses Objection

In stressing his objection Mayor Heislman said:

"Under paragraph 2b the P. S. C. order stipulates that Broadway C. order stipulates that Broadway shall be paved with concrete to a width of 54 feet between curbs."

"The city requests that the width of Broadway be retained at its present width which varies between 57 and 58 feet, as Broadway is the only east and west thoroughfare in the city and consequently has a large concentration of traffic. Narrowing Broadway would also reduce the necessary area for parking, and add further congestion to the traffic during heavy snow storms."

"If any change in width is to be made in Broadway, it would be more desirable to have it widened than made more narrow."

"Under paragraph 2h the P. S. C. order stipulates that 'Railroad and Greenkill avenues shall not be regraded or connected with Broadway and substantial barricades shall be erected across each avenue at the top of the side slopes.'"

The city requests that Railroad avenue be regraded in accordance with Exhibit 21 for the following reasons:

There are numerous buses, taxis, express company vehicles, delivery trucks and private cars which use Railroad avenue and Thomas street as a means of ingress and egress to the railroad station, bus terminals and business establishments. If Railroad avenue were blocked off, there would be an added concentration of traffic at Thomas street and Cornell street, and thereby cause additional congestion of traffic to an area which is already a serious problem for the regulation of traffic.

If Railroad avenue is left open, all westbound traffic to and from Railroad avenue could be regulated so as not to cross traffic in Broadway, and consequently relieve congestion at Cornell and Thomas streets.

Blocking off Railroad avenue would seriously hamper the fire apparatus getting into this area in case of fire, or other emergencies. "Under paragraph 2j the P. S. C. order stipulates 'A concrete road approximately 24 feet in width shall be constructed on the location of the abandoned trolley line between Dederick street and Thomas street, expecting that portion across the tracks of the New York Central Railroad Company which shall be constructed and used for a temporary highway during the period necessary to construct the grade crossing elimination and the restoration of highway traffic on Broadway."

"The city requests that paragraph 2j be amended to provide a concrete roadway 30 feet in width with five feet sidewalks on either side, extending from Railroad avenue to Cornell street. This new street would materially relieve traffic congestion on Broadway at Cornell street and Thomas street, as a great amount of traffic from easterly side of Broadway and west of Railroad avenue could be shunted to and from the railroad station without having to use Broadway."

Calls It 'Fatal'

Commissioner O'Connor remarking on the entrance of traffic to Railroad avenue at the depressed grade on Broadway said such entrance would be "fatal."

Objects to Scheme

Harry Rigby, manager of the Kingston Coal Co., objected to the scheme of running a street from Railroad avenue through to Cornell street on the grounds it would cut the coal company property in two and create a dangerous condition. He said if such a street were to be cut through the property of the coal company it would separate the office and weighing station from the coal yards and cause coal trucks to cross and recross the new street repeatedly. Further he said if a strip of land were taken for a new street it would reduce the yard space and make the present location absolutely unsuited for the purposes to which it is now devoted. The entire yard space is now required for operations. Such a plan would make necessary also the employment of additional help in the yard even if the coal plant did remain there. Should the office be moved across the new street to the same side as the coal pockets he said there would not be sufficient space to operate the yards. He said the coal company favored the elimination but objected to the new street from Railroad avenue to Cornell street through the coal company property.

Mr. Jayne for the railroad objected to the closing of Railroad avenue and said it would greatly inconvenience passenger traffic to the station if the street were closed. He said the railroad would be glad to see Railroad avenue connected with Broadway at the depressed grade and if Railroad avenue were depressed there would be no need for the new street suggested. He also said the bridge span to connect Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenue was not suitable for the purposes and he also objected to the temporary crossing to be constructed at the site of the old trolley underpass. He suggested Smith avenue or some other street be used as a by-pass during construction.

Commissioner O'Connor said the new order would leave the matter of temporary roadway to be used during construction up to the city. Judge A. J. Cook appeared and spoke in favor of grading Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenue down to meet Broadway. He argued that to throw additional traffic to Cedar and Thomas streets would create a traffic hazard and cause added congestion. He pointed out that property on only one side of Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenue would have to be taken to depress the two streets and that traffic could be properly regulated to avoid danger.

For the State Highway Division F. W. Burleigh spoke. He said his department suggested "safety as the most important factor" and opposed depressing Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenue to the Broadway subway grade. He said the state would favor a bridge over Broadway if Railroad avenue could not be closed.

Two armed Chinese held up the passengers of a trackless trolley in Shanghai, China, and escaped with $11,465.

Dinner Is Given For J. W. Gordon By B.W.S. Group

JAMES W. GORDON

A testimonial and farewell dinner was given last night at the Governor Clinton Hotel for James William Gordon of 54 Wrentham street, who retired May 31 after 32 years of service with the Reservoir Department, Board of Water Supply City of New York.

The 130 guests who attended included engineers, other employees of the board and other friends. Donald N. Henry was master of ceremonies and with Ed. Ward collaborating led in singing a number of original songs and ballads.

Among the prominent engineers and employees who have been connected with the New York Board of Water Supply and its work at Ashokan, over 20 were present who were "on the job" before 1909, five of them back as far as 1905. One of them was the present, and only living, chief engineer of the Board of Water Supply, Charles M. Clark of New York city. Of the three who have served as department engineers of the Reservoir-Watershed Department, the present engineer in charge, James A. Guttridge was present. Carleton E. Davis, now in Philadelphia, and George G. Honness, both sent telegrams regretting their inability to attend the dinner and expressing their friendship for the guest of honor. A number of the present contractors on the Lackawack project, including Reis & Weinsier, Ottaviano & MacDonald and S. R. Rosoff were represented at the dinner by members of their staffs.

Members of the department of office at Kingston, headed by W. D. Hubbard, division engineer, connected with the work of building the Ashokan dam, before the maintenance department was formed, also joined in paying tribute to "Jim's faithful and long service." Mr. Hubbard, with other speakers, referred particularly to Jim's ability as a clambake master supreme.

Judge E. F. Buswell, one of the "Class of 1905" present, also recently retired, greeted Jim as the latest "member of the unemployed" and joined in wishing him long life and happiness, as did another, Frank Bishop, whose connection with the work at Ashokan also dates back to the same year. Among well known engineers and others prominent in the old days, who were present and spoke were: Hiram A. Hill, senior division engineer; Sidney K. Clapp, one of the "old originals" in the early days at Ashokan; Judge John D. Groves, a section engineer during the building of the dam; N. LeRoy Hammond, division engineer at Lackawack; Max Freund, division engineer at Kerhonkson, and Victor C. Brownson, division engineer in charge at Neverson.

A feature of the program was the presentation of a "token of appreciation" to the guest of honor. The presentation was made by Mr. Clapp, in an appropriate speech, but when the carefully wrapped and valuable looking package was unwrapped it was found to contain a clay pipe. Jim accepted with thanks, saying that it was "just what he wanted." (Later Jim was presented with a traveling bag.)

The long list of speakers was concluded by the presentation of the guest of honor himself. He thanked the engineers and employees of the board for the tribute and then reminisced of some of the events of the early days of the Ashokan project.

The program for the dinner bore a good picture of "Jim," wearing his famous "clambake" apron, accompanied by the quotation, "Friendship is life's rarest treasure." A brief sketch noted that he was born in the village Clones, County Fermanagh, Ulster, North Ireland. He came to New York in 1889. Was in business a while with his brother, then was employed with T. K. Egbert, wholesale grocer, raising and caring for fine bred horses and on April 17, 1909 came to Brown Station to begin his long term of service with Board of Water Supply.

The committee on arrangements was headed by Sidney K. Clapp, associated with him being David Goldberger, W. Lamson Van Steenburgh, Prescott J. Clapp and Edward P. Ward.

Farmers Seek Help

Vacation-freedom school children will prove indispensable boom to labor-starved fruit farmers in Orange county it was indicated Thursday. Simultaneously it appeared that the reluctance of men on the W.P.A. to engage in harvesting fruit crops was spread over the entire county. Lack of transportation and smaller pay envelopes was cited by officials as the reason why W.P.A. men refused. Fruit farmers in Orange county have been vainly seeking help in harvesting the strawberry crop.

Couch Catches Fire

Shortly after midnight this morning the fire department responded to a call for a fire in a studio couch in the home of James H. Schoonmaker, 39 Charlotte avenue. The fire was caused by a spark from a cigar, the firemen reported, and was confined to the couch. At 10:55 o'clock last night the department was called out by a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. Anna DeMott at 108 Gage street.

ed a lamp and threw down the match but could not say that the match might have started the fire in the clothing in the closet. She said sometimes matches went out and sometimes they did not. She saw no evidence of fire when she left the place about 10 in the evening. That was the second time she had been in the house that evening after supper.

Miss Bennett admitted she knew Chief Porter well enough to call him Chief or "Dick" and had known him for some time but said after her arrest she was afraid of bodily harm and had signed a statement of confession by making a cross by her signature when the chief asked her to do so. She said she never could tell what one might do to you and intimated that the confession was secured through force or fear of bodily harm.

No one struck her and the confession was secured within a few minutes after she was apprehended. She denied the statement was read to her before she signed it. She admitted she knew Chief Porter well enough not to be afraid of him but said when she was faced by the chief and other officers in a room she became frightened and started to cry and made no objection to placing her mark on the statement.

In court she identified a basket of partially burned clothes as being her clothes which had been thrown in the clothes closet during the three or four days prior to the fire. Some of the material she said she could not identify.

Denied Drinking

On cross examination she denied she had been drinking in the Town Tavern prior to the fire and said she had nothing to drink in the place from 10 o'clock on. She had a beer earlier in the evening when she went out to purchase socks. From about 10 o'clock until the place closed at 3 a. m. she sat in the place but had nothing to drink.

Asked how many men she had lived with prior to living with John Lansky, she said about two, but was not married to any of the men. She denied she ever lived with Charles James Brown, Ellenville negro who was electrocuted for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Handelman in Ellenville. Their place was set afire to hide the crime. During trial Miss Bennett was mentioned as a "girl friend" of Brown with whom she had an argument just prior to the Handelman fire.

Miss Bennett denied the confession.

Allied Forces Hit at Beirut

flanking movement by picturesque Circassian—White Moslem—cavalrymen under the famous Col. Philibert Collet was reported to have cut half-way around Damascus.

Collet was reported to have skirted a semi-desert area south-east of Damascus to strike his former comrades at the rear and force Damascus to open her gates to the siege forces. The colonel joined the Free French in a flight from Syria three weeks ago. The push against Damascus had been stalled for two or three days.

An authoritative source said Collet and his Circassians actually had reached the Damascus suburbs after capturing two villages on the French left.

In the center of the southern front created by the British-Free French advance from Palestine and Trans-Jordan, one column was said to have progressed north of Merdjayoun, about 35 miles southwest of Beirut and some 40 miles southwest of Damascus.

The westernmost column, headed toward Beirut along a coastal highway, had overcome or sidestepped stubborn resistance if the report were true that Sidon had been passed. Informed sources in London said it was quite possible that the British already were skirting Sidon.

They explained that the allies were doing their best to sidestep pockets of resistance and thus might sweep around rather than assault towns held almost certain to capitulate when surrounded.

REPORT UNMUZZLED DOGS

With an ever growing number of cases of rabies among dogs reported in Ulster county, the increasing gravity of the situation is being stressed by Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, district state health officer, and Dr. L. E. Sanford, city health officer. Articles by these authorities calling attention to the seriousness of the spread of this dread disease have been appearing in the news columns of The Freeman ever since the quarantine was placed in effect this year.

Dr. Ingraham, in an article printed in The Freeman Thursday, pointed out that so far this year there have been 35 cases reported in Ulster county as compared with the 20 cases of rabies reported during 1940, which shows that the disease instead of diminishing is increasing in numbers.

Some of the rabid dogs, which have been killed, have bitten persons, and these victims have been forced to take treatments to prevent contracting the dread disease.

Dr. Sanford urges persons bitten or scratched by a dog have the wound cauterized by a physician at once, and report the matter promptly to the health department so that the dog may be placed under observation.

In Kingston every effort is being made to enforce the rabies quarantine and the dog catcher is busy picking up all stray and unmuzzled dogs which he finds at large. Every one can assist in strict enforcement of the quarantine regulations by reporting immediately to the police all cases of stray or unmuzzled dogs roaming the streets.

While the majority of dog owners in Kingston are complying with the quarantine provisions there are still a number who are violating the law by allowing their dogs to go unmuzzled on the streets. The small minority failing to observe quarantine are exposing their dogs to the danger of contracting the disease from stray dogs which enter the city.

In some of the cities of the Hudson River Valley where rabies among dogs quarantines are in force the authorities have been compelled to enforce compliance with the regulations by having the owners of dogs arrested and arraigned in police court.

Such a step should not be necessary in Kingston for every dog owner is, or should be, aware of the increasing prevalence of rabies.

In order to stamp out rabies in Kingston and Ulster county every one should cooperate with the health authorities in seeing to it that the quarantine regulations are strictly enforced. The safe method of cooperation for dog owners is to keep the dogs confined, except when on leash, and then only under constant surveillance. Another safety measure is for all to report unmuzzled dogs to the police.

KIDNAPPED SYRIA

"Levant" means "rising" and its application to Asia Minor means "Land of the Rising Sun." There may be something in that designation if the British and the "Free French" troops now fighting there succeed in liberating Syria from the domination of decadent France.

It seems clear that France has never done Syria much good. It should be remembered, too, that France has never owned Syria and never held it honestly as a province. It is a case of genteel kidnapping. The country was merely assigned to France in trust, at the peace conference after the last war. France, to be sure, followed the general example of regarding mandated territory as her own, and acting accordingly. This process has been simpler and easier as the League of Nations fell to pieces and could no longer exercise any supervision.

The case is worth emphasizing because of the principle involved and the way it illumines a lot of territorial titles in Africa and in scores of places around the world.

The British, fighting to free Syria from Fascistic France, while doing a good deed and incidentally making their own position around the eastern Mediterranean more secure, may also be making future trouble for themselves. If this freedom of mandated territories continues, the British themselves may be asked to surrender an immense amount of territory, in Africa and elsewhere, granted to them in trust at Versailles.

STRONG TEAMWORK

Our governmental system rests so gently upon our people, and its authority is generally applied with so light a hand, that even in times like these the direct exercise of power comes with a shock. It is so when the army is used to keep armament factories in operation.

There are some people, chiefly workmen and labor leaders, who seem to regard such procedure as outrageous and un-American. Yet there is nothing in the United States Constitution, nothing in common law, and nothing in the practice of this or any other democracy through the years, that justifies such a view. In a defensive emergency, as at present, and on the edge of war, any other governmental attitude would be suicidal.

A government that cannot keep its people at work for the general defense in such a situation is doomed, and its people are doomed.

No nation in these times, especially, can carry on without teamwork. As the crisis intensifies, the teamwork becomes obligatory and automatic. Individuals and groups can no more be allowed to interfere and spoil the team play than they could be if it were a ball game. Authority then is concentrated in government and army, and it is in the police at a fire in normal times. Internal resistance or sabotage is intolerable. In order that the nation may survive, the many, through their chosen agents, have to prevent interference from the rebellious few.

These are commonplace of free government, but there are times when it seems necessary to restate them.

The American farmer is no longer a "Rube" but an expert mechanic who knows what to do when a city slicker's car won't run.

Well, we have a chicken in every pot and a car in every garage, and yet we're not secure and happy.

"The British are not hurt," says a Canadian, "because they do not weep." They can take it.

MUST KNOW PEOPLE

When a patient is ill enough to be confined to bed either at home or in hospital, the question arises as to how much the physician should tell the patient about the probable outcome. Of course, if the condition is not serious, the patient and family are so told and no problem arises.

At a lecture at Harvard Medical School, Dr. Charles R. Austrian, Johns Hopkins, stated that to gain full cooperation of the patient in many cases the physician must tell the exact nature of his illness. Hard facts can be softened by careful statements. "When a patient is seriously ill, it is justifiable for the physician to express the hope that his chances for recovery are better than they seem to be at the moment; but if he is fatally sick, it is not often well to tell him that he will not recover."

Of course, there is no rigid rule about this but Dr. Austrian states that the full truth should be told to some responsible relative or friend. "Generally a partial truth is worse than a lie, but 'incomplete' information will spare avoidable sorrow."

When the physician does not consider the patient ill, yet complains of various symptoms, the patient is considered a "neurotic." In former days, this type of patient was told to go home and forget it; today he is given a little more consideration and an attempt is made to find out why he or she feels it necessary to consult the physician.

However, Dr. Austrian points out that some of these so-called neurotics have real or organic conditions and are so not neurotics at all. "There are many people with functional disorders who apparently have no organic disease but until precise or careful studies have shown the cause of the pain, weakness, dizziness, heart palpitation and other symptoms, the physician cannot tell the difference between a neurotic (thinking an ailment to be present) and the early stage of some disease."

From the above it is evident that a physician must not only know diseases but know people so that he can speak the right word to the patient, whether he thinks the outcome will be fatal, is uncertain, or will be favorable.

NO SALE

BABSON ON BUSINESS

PRESENT OPPORTUNITIES UNLIMITED
 Babson Does Not Fear War-Time Restrictions

Babson Park, Mass., June 13.—Letters are coming to me from manufacturers, merchants, salesmen, and others asking as how the war will affect businesses,—such questions as, "Will I be able to sell electric refrigerators?" "Will installment buying be allowed?" "Will more oil burners be manufactured?" etc. These people see so much in the papers about priorities, control of raw materials, manufacturers' restrictions, and the like that they are thoroughly scared. They wonder whether they will have the goods to sell and whether people will be in a buying mood if they do have the goods to sell.

Can't Kill Industries

The first thing to remember is that human nature cannot be changed by legislation. I learned this during World War I when I was National Director of Information and Education at Washington. We shut down on Sunday motoring, but the money went into silk shirts instead of into gasoline. In England, they first shut off the sale of cosmetics to English working girls in the factories. The authorities soon found, however, that unless the girls could buy what they wanted the production of munitions fell off. Then, the Government went to the other extreme and installed in all factories slot machines for the sale of cosmetics.

I repeat: No Government restrictions can change human nature. This means that industries can't be killed. People will change their habits of riding from a stage-coach to a railroad train and from a railroad train to a bus or airplane; but the transportation industry is fundamental. Men will change their mode of fighting from bows and arrows to pistols and guns and then to tanks and bombing planes, but warfare is fundamental. We change our method of heating from wood pile to coal stove and then to the oil burner; but the heating industry still remains fundamental. Those who stick to their industry but are willing to change their methods are, in the long run, successful.

Finding New Uses

Our great grandparents did their reading by candlelight; our grandparents read with a kerosene lamp; our parents lit the house with gas; while we use the incandescent lamp. The mode of lighting changed, but those who stuck to the lighting industry and were willing to change the method of lighting came through with flying colors. The easily-frightened and the "die-hards" were wiped out. Certainly, there is a lesson in this for all of us today. Do not give up the business or line of work for which you are trained because Harold Lokes says "Boo" to you and tries to scare you.

There is something more in this connection, however, which we should now remember. It is this: Notwithstanding the changes from candles to kerosene and to gas and electricity, this astounding fact is true: MORE CANDLES ARE SOLD TODAY, MORE KEROSENE IS SOLD TODAY, AND MORE GAS IS SOLD TODAY THAN EVER BEFORE IN HISTORY. This means that even some of those who remained in these "vanishing" businesses are making millions today. They are making these millions because they developed new uses for their products. They taught people to use candles for decorative purposes; to use kerosene to operate the kitchen stove; and to use gas to heat the house, operate the ice-box, and a score of other things never dreamed of before.

Use Your Brains

A famous magazine publisher interested in developing national advertising once gave me the job of discovering some industry in which no one was then making a fortune. I spent a year on the quest, traveling thousands of miles and making all kinds of inquiries from cradles to coffins in which someone, somewhere, was not making millions. Certainly, this proves that it is the man rather than the industry which determines success or failure.

If you lack courage and imagination, better get a job with the Government or enlist in the army as soon as possible. These are two fields where you need to do only what you are told and you will get your pay check just the same at the end of every month. If, however, you have courage and imagination and are willing to use your brains and your shoe leather, you need not fear how the war will affect your business. Remember that you have in your head the most wonderful and profitable machine which God or man ever created. For heaven's sake use it for something besides supporting a hat!

Remember Plastics

The priority regulations chiefly affect metals. These regulations would have been a severe handicap to manufacturers of refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, radios, etc., during World War I, if these things had been in general use twenty-five years ago. Since then however, the use of plastics has been discovered. In most things now sold for household use, plastics can today take the place of metals. Think this over before getting frightened! Also remember that plastics are only one of a score of other important substitutes which have been developed since World War I. Make priorities and other war restrictions steppingstones to better business, more profits, and real prosperity, instead of getting frightened and running for cover.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY
 "The Captain From Connecticut," By C. S. Forester

Although the fact that C. S. Forester wrote "The Captain From Connecticut" with his eye on the serial market is fairly obvious now that it is published in book form, the story has to offer exactly what all the other Forester books have had, which is excellent entertainment of the Zane Grey school. Although Mr. Forester writes better than the latter, I think.

This gift for swift prose is as evident in the new book as it was, for example, in the Hornblower series. But in spite of its swift movement and general competence, "The Captain From Connecticut" does not equal either of the three Hornblower books for two reasons. The first is that Captain Peabody of the current production is an American in theory, and actually might be anybody. The other is that Mr. Forester gets almost halfway through his story before he remembers his "love interest," and at that point is forced to rush out and bring in a suitable girl with a larrikin. The proceeding is, at times, almost funny. It is funny, if you add to it the extraordinary lack of anything which would identify Captain Peabody as a Yankee.

If this sounds captious, let me add hastily that this same Captain Peabody, another of those shrewd men who handle a ship like Ralph de Palma used to handle a racing car. The ship in this case is the United States frigate "Delaware," which slipped out of Long Island Sound in the course of the War of 1812, and did all sorts of damage to the British, chiefly in the Caribbean neighborhood. Captain Peabody's problem is a tricky one—he must certainly keep out of the hands of the British, and therefore he must avoid battle under any circumstances which would entail the possibility of defeat or capture.

Seven of Nine Justices of U. S. Supreme Court Are Political Friends, Associates of President Roosevelt

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, June 13.—Seven out of the nine justices of the Supreme Court of the United States are political friends and associates of President Roosevelt. Never in the history of the United States has a President appointed so many men of a political group.

Elevation of Harlan Fiske Stone to the post of chief justice was logical for he is the senior justice and to have appointed anyone else would have been to reject the long experience and liberal record of an able jurist.

But while the appointment of Mr. Stone is commendable, the principle involved in the selection of Senator Byrnes and Attorney General Jackson is one that will occasion considerable debate. Neither one has served in a judicial capacity before. The South Carolina senator is an able advocate and so is Mr. Jackson. Both men are personally popular in Washington and, except for their readiness to subordinate everything to considerations of party politics, they are as good a pair of recent appointees as can be found in the New Deal.

Is, however, personal and political loyalty to the President the acid test for appointment to the supreme court? Senator Byrnes was a leader in the third-term draft movement in Chicago and has done yeoman service for the administration on the floor of the Senate. Mr. Jackson has been an efficient administrator of the department of justice, but his opinion declaring legal the transfer of old age destroyers to Britain was not the work of a great lawyer but a master of the adroit phrases of expediency such as Justice Frankfurter has regrettably proved himself to be.

What the nation wants on the supreme court is men who can forget politics. The record of the last term shows the New Dealers voting as a unit in so many cases that it seems a strange coincidence. The tendency of the supreme court with its New Deal majority has been to apply the principle that the king can do no wrong. Counsel for the government agencies and departments seem to get their way as the rights of the citizen are repeatedly trampled upon. Thus in the 1939-40 term of the court, the government counsel won all but two or three tax cases. Even where the lower courts occasionally said a taxpayer was right, the supreme court ruled otherwise. In the last term of the court just closed, the score in federal tax cases was 33 to 8 in favor of the government counsel, 8 to 3 in favor of the government in labor cases and 10 to 4 in favor of the government in business regulation cases.

As for dissents, out of a total of 166 opinions rendered by a majority of the court, the record shows that a great liberal jurist like Chief Justice Hughes was overruled by his radical colleagues 22 times. Justice Roberts dissented 30 times. Justice Stone dissented six times.

The number of dissents show how the chief justice had lost control of the court. Small wonder he resigned. Will Chief Justice Stone be able to do otherwise? It remains to be seen. Of the dissents in the last session, one by Justice Stone stands out. He and Mr. Hughes declined to go along with Justice Frankfurter's opinion that new workers who had been rejected for employment must be hired because of alleged discrimination by an employer and that back pay must be awarded.

Justice Stone, however, was one of the nine justices who held that delegation of power to the N.R.A. was unconstitutional and every now and then he has revealed a reverence for the human rights in property as contrasted with justices like former Senator Black who seem bent on confiscating corporate property at every opportunity.

The appointment of Senator Byrnes pleased the Senate. He is one of the most likeable men in public life and it should not be forgotten that he was one of the sponsors of a Senate resolution against sit-down strikes a couple of years ago. If the sentiment of the country swings against the confiscationists on the court, it would not be surprising to find Justice Byrnes closer to the conservative than the radical side.

Somewhat the same trend may be expected eventually from Attorney General Jackson. He has in recent years been more of the prosecutor type, but originally he was a corporation lawyer of merit. So far as his record as a practicing attorney is concerned, Mr. Jackson ranks as high as anybody who has recently been put on the bench. The only case in which members of the bar found him wanting was in the matter of the over-age destroyers and he will be forgiven by some for rendering an expediency opinion in a time of international crisis, though it is believed a recommendation by Congress would have gone a long way toward removing so many of the criticisms of one-man rule which have been visited on the executive branch of the government.

In the days to come, property rights will be challenged and the New Deal Supreme Court will line up for and against. In such a showdown, Justices Stone, Reed, Roberts, Jackson and Byrnes may well become a majority with the possible addition of Murphy and Frankfurter under certain circumstances.

Many a jurist on the federal bench will be disappointed over the way the President has filled up the Supreme Court with his political henchmen. Many an able lawyer will regret that the President has persisted in a political conception of the judiciary. For Mr. Roosevelt has set a precedent. A Supreme Court justiceship now is part of the spoils of politics and personal service to a president.

Other presidents have appointed a justice now and then in the hope doubtless that he would decide cases in conformity with a certain philosophy. But invariably these presidents have been disappointed. Thus far the New Deal agencies, no matter how arbitrary their rulings, have been upheld by the Roosevelt appointees. But there may come a day when these appointees under the stress of national problems will come to see that in the American republic the best way to secure tolerance and obedience is for the judiciary really to operate as an independent branch of the government as planned by our forefathers.

Will it be seven "yes" men or seven justices on the new Supreme Court? Time alone can answer.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, June 13.—Methodist Church—Sunday school meets at 10:30 o'clock. Worship at 11:30 o'clock. The Rev. Frederick Baker, pastor.

Reformed Church—Sunday school meets at 10 o'clock. Children's Day service at 11 o'clock. At this time the children of the Sunday school will present a religious play entitled "The Children's Quest," by Martha Bayly.

There will also be recitations and songs by the children. Christian Endeavor meets Sunday evening at 7 o'clock with the pastor, the Rev. Ivan Dykstra, in charge.

Union prayer service Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Reformed Church.

Red Cross meeting Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Charles Hardenberg.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Palen. There were eight members present. Plans were made for the Old English Fair and cafeteria supper to be held at the church Thursday, June 28.

There will be a regular Grange meeting Monday evening at the Grange hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Carmen and family of New York spent the weekend at their summer cottage in this village.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Samuelsen and son, Thomas, and mother, Mrs. Daberg, of Brooklyn, are spending the week-end with their aunt, Mrs. Guttorm Nilssen.

A defense meeting will be held Tuesday evening, June 17, at 8 o'clock at the Stone Ridge Firemen's Hall.

And yet he mut, in order to plague the enemy, stay always in reach and take every sort of chance.

Eventually this lands Mr. Forester's astute hero in Martinique and in a very odd predicament indeed. He emerges from a good deal of nice clean prose with a "he" and a "British" "uncle" and a "body" thinks it is a simple matter to produce a book like this, let him try it.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

After hearing City Clerk Fred Doremus tell of the fabulous prices he had received in times past for produce raised on his farm, Alderman C. E. Powell of the Ninth ward, in the spring of 1918, decided to acquire a farm for himself which he did at Tilsen.

In an old clipping of May of that year it said that Alderman Powell had decided to raise a beard to protect his face from sun stroke while engaged in working his farm. As the alderman was just planning to plant his crops the clipping did not reveal how successful the season was that year on the Powell farm.

I also recalled that as the women were given the privilege of voting in 1918, the common council found it necessary to increase the number of voting districts in Kingston. For years there were 23 districts, and one ward comprising five voting districts.

Under the plan adopted by the city fathers on June 4, 1918, the city was divided into 20 voting districts. Seven of the wards were divided into two districts each. The six wards that remained unchanged were the First, Fifth, Eighth, Ninth, Eleventh and Twelfth.

It was in the spring of 1917 that the fire board installed a motor fire truck in Cordts Hose house on Delaware avenue, and the old horse-drawn truck was stored in the Cornell Station on Abel street.

With the placing of the fire truck in Cordts Hose the fire department was equipped with four motor fire trucks.

Ed M. Heermans who had been serving as secretary of the city's Chamber of Commerce, resigned in May, 1918, as he had planned to leave the city. He had been serving the organization as secretary since November, 1917.

Six cent fares on the local trolley road came into existence in 1918. For years the fare had been 5 cents, but in June of that year the city fathers adopted an amended ordinance that permitted the trolley road to increase the amount of fare charged, provided the state public service commission granted permission.

As I recall it the only Alderman to vote against the amendment was Alderman C. E. Powell of the Ninth ward.

The Quiz Kids are a group of bright youngsters who have amazed the country with their ability to answer correctly questions like the ones below. See if you can beat their percentages—but remember that these children are exceptional. Rate your own score to see if you can equal or beat their combined average of 90 per cent on today's questions.

1. Whose tails did the farmer's wife cut off with a carving knife?
2. What is the name of the light wood material of which flags are made? It is sometimes used as a synonym for flag.
3. A hanger belongs in a clothes closet. What belongs in a hangar?
4. Which of the following cities is out of place in this group: Madrid, Port of Spain, Barcelona, Toledo.
5. One of the commonest of all letter combinations is Rx. You've probably seen it in many drug stores. What is its meaning?
6. A necropolis is the name applied to any burying ground. What is a metropolis?
7. Here's a gag for you. If you were locked in a room with no possible means of escape, and had with you only a bat and ball, how would you get out?
8. If you were reading a musical composition and saw the letter "C" after the clef sign on the staff, would you know in what time the piece was to be played?
9. There are a few performers named "Oscar" in Hollywood. Why does the movie capital constantly buzz with conversation about "Oscar"?
10. A lost parrot reminds you of what geometrical figure?

WRECK OF ARMY BOMBER IN WHICH SIX DIED

Six U. S. Army fliers were killed when this two-motored bomber crashed on a brush-covered hillside in southwestern Wyoming, near Lyman. The wreck of plane was spotted from the air, after the craft failed to reach port on a cross-country flight.

Rabid Dog Killed After Biting Six Other Area Dogs

Shot and killed in Saugerties after it had run amuck and bitten six other dogs the German police dog owned by Albert P. Dusey of 50 East Chester street, this city, proved to be positive case of rabies, according to a report received by
Dr. L. E. Sanford, Kingston's health officer, last night.

The head of the dog was taken to the state laboratory in Albany
Wednesday, and tests were made which determined the fact that the dog when killed was afflicted with the disease.

Dr. Sanford made an investigation Thursday which disclosed that the dog had been let out of the house early Monday morning, and at that time was wearing a muzzle.
The dog failed to return home and evidently wandered as far as Saugerties where it attacked the other dogs.

All of the six dogs bitten by the rabid animal will be killed.

This was the fourth case of rabies among dogs to be discovered in Kingston since the quarantine was clamped on earlier in the year.

Pet Dog Dies

"Muffy," poodle dog owned by Thomas W. Miller, secretary to Mayor C. J. Heiselman, died last night at the unusual age, for a dog, of 21 years. "Muffy" was the oldest dog on record in the city clerk's office, and he had been licensed 20 times. According to the average life span of man,
"Muffy" was in comparison, 147 years old, Mr. Miller said.

Ernest Colmann Killed

Paterson, N. J., June 13 (AP)—Ernest Colman, 51-year-old attorney and executive of a New York stevedore concern, was shot to death last night by a man who,
Lieut. George Bengert said, accosted him on the street near his home, pumped two bullets into his body and escaped by scaling a high wall at the foot of a dead-end street. Bengert said no motive for the slaying had been established.

Diphtheria Talk Is Mere Rumor, Declares Sanford

Unfounded rumors of a case of diphtheria in School No. 6 were being circulated in Kingston on Thursday, according to Dr. L. E.
Sanford, health officer, who today called attention to the fact that for at least eight years there had been no cases of the disease in Kingston.

Dr. Sanford said that there had been no cases reported in the city of diphtheria, and pointed out that for a number of years the health department of the city has been conducting a weekly series of immunization clinics for smallpox and diphtheria in Kingston.

These free clinics are held every Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock at the city hall, at which time Dr. Sanford treats each child for immunization against diphtheria and when desired vaccinates
the child against smallpox.

Dr. Sanford said that the holding of these clinics had proved its value over a long period of years by the wiping out of diphtheria in the city.

"Tridentes," a new Brazilian opera, will be produced in the Municipal Theatre of Rio de Janeiro this year.

Was Worth It

The pretty A. T. S. girl sank into the corner seat.

"Good job I managed to catch this train," she said. "I've overstayed my leave by two days already."

"And what happens to you when you overstay your leave?" I asked.

"C. B." she replied. "Scrubbing floors, washing dishes, and so forth."

"Shouldn't think it's worth while overstaying," I suggested.

"Oh, but it was," she said, powdering her face as she put a different complexion on things: "You see my boy's been on leave, too, and this morning he asked me to marry him."

It's a depression when times are bad and prices ruinously low. When things get good and prices go higher they call it inflation. Just what normalcy is remains a mystery.

Massachusetts, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Kentucky are officially known as commonwealths, according to their state constitutions, while subdivisions of Louisiana are known as parishes instead of counties. Oak Park, Ill., with a population of over 65,000, is officially a village.

THE SACRED DAGGER

By RITA MOHR HANSON

YESTERDAY: Anne Willard is waiting for the return of a truck from Chuka with, of all things, two birth charts. These are connected in a strange way with the release of her parents, who are being held prisoner by the Nagaras, a neighboring Asiatic tribe whose particular charge is the fabled city of Shy-a Nago. It is this city that Anne's party wishes to find.

Chapter 23

"The Dagger Guards You"

THE truck returned from Chuka with the birth charts made out in the Chinese manner.

"They are favorable," said Philip, finding Anne in the mess hut alone shortly afterwards. She had lit a fire in the fireplace for cheerfulness. He locked the papers in his desk, a bit embarrassed at being party to such proceedings. Consulting the stars! A little too much like child's play. The others would be amused if they knew. Anne comforted him.

The Nagaras cannot doubt our sincerity on this point at least. When do you suppose they're coming for us?"

"I don't know. We've been seeing signal fires in the hills lately."

"If they don't come soon we should start out to meet them. Follow the trail father and mother took. Do something to get in touch with them. It is terrifying to receive no word day after day."

Philip was pacing back and forth before the fire in his usual nervous way.

"I hate to tell you this, Anne, and I don't know what to make of it, but there's a rumor in Chuka that Russian archeologists have made contact with the Nagaras and are advancing themselves as the avatars of Destiny come to fulfill the prophecy."

"What does that mean?" Anne demanded, and she did not have the heart to tell him Pete's report that Blaze had made a trip to Russia.

"I don't know."

The others came in then and were told the rumor.

"Things are going from bad to worse," said Philip pessimistically and no one contradicted him. A knock sounded on the door.

A communication had been brought by special courier from Chuka. The Amban notified Philip that the government was sending an official inspector to join the expedition.

"An official spy," sneered Larry. "He'll probably be a Mandarin with a big retinue," sighed the doctor. "I'll have to put a guard over the spring or we'll be drinking bathwater—and worse."

Larry laughed shortly. "What they are after is a hand in the treasure."

"But isn't that taken care of in the concession contract father made with the governor?" Anne asked.

Philip shook his head. "Not specifically. We didn't know anything about Shy-a Nago when we came. Neither did the officials."

"We don't know yet," declared Larry. "I sometimes think it's all a red herring."

"If only father and mother are safe!" The men looked at Anne pityingly. They had even graver doubts than she.

Beth rose, suppressing a yawn. "Let's go to bed. This has been an exciting day. They all wandered out to their tents. Anne knew that each girl was anxious to see her alone to learn whether she was willing to tell any more that Blaze had said in his letter. She had been dodging them all afternoon. Now she felt an overpowering urge to get out among the trees and absorb their peace.

Visit In The Dark

WHEN the camp had quieted down, she took a blanket and pillow and slipped out. Daddap sat up when she appeared in her dark coat. There would be no moon.

She turned her electric torch on him. "I'm going to sleep on a pile of white," she said in a low voice. He gave her his bright look.

"Yes, I know."

"If you know so much, shall I have pleasant dreams," she asked jestingly.

"Don't be afraid, whatever comes."

She laughed. Daddap might spook her, but she couldn't tease him.

"Wear the dagger." She had turned away and now looked back. He repeated. "Wear the dagger."

"Why, Daddap?"

"The dagger guards you."

"Don't you think I'll be safe?"

"Yes, but wear the dagger." His persistence impressed her in spite of herself and she went back and strapped the belt around her waist.

Quietly, so as not to disturb the guards, she walked up through the cottonwood grove where the trees were thickest. In a few minutes she heard voices—Diana's tinkling laugh and a man's low tones. Anne didn't care, but the thought of infidelity sickened her a little. She was wondering if she could circle round them without revealing herself when they came walking towards her, made visible by Diana's white dress. Anne froze behind a tree. They passed close enough for her to recognize Philip and to hear Diana say, "I'll send a message to be wireless to father at once."

Anne wondered what plans they could be making that would include Diana's father. After they disappeared, she went to the place she had been seeking, an open patch of sod up next to the hill, where a benevolent old willow tree with a thick bole and wide arms stood somewhat apart. She lay down flat on one half of her blanket and drew the other half over her.

Anne's eyelids drooped and then she slept.

She did not know what awakened her. A sound. A touch on her hand. Or just the presence of the two who crouched at her side in their dark robes.

She sat up, stifling a scream and pushed the blanket from about her. One of the pair smiled.

Anne recognized the priests who had given her the dagger at Jus Masar.

"You," she whispered when they made signs for quiet.

"Is all well with you?" the man asked.

"Yes," she answered excitedly. "Have you come to take me?"

He shook his head. "Not yet. We wait till the stars are favorable."

"Are you taking good care of my parents?" she demanded.

The woman answered: "Good care."

"They are well?"

"Well."

"Did they send me a letter?"

"It is not allowed."

"Then why are you here?"

The man frowned.

"The story came—that you were dying on the desert—and another would carry the dagger."

Anne reached in the sheath and drew out the knife, glad she had obeyed the lama. They both scrambled back from its nakedness. Anne rose and put the dagger away again.

"You see," she said, "everything is all right here. You have no cause to distrust us."

"We see," they answered.

"What, because of the companion condemned to die with you?" the man asked.

"He went his way and I went mine."

"Did he respect the dagger?"

"He did," she answered shortly. Suddenly voices and lights arose from the yard entered by the huts and tents. Anne heard Beth call: "I tell you her cot has not been slept in!" And Diana's voice: "Her cot is gone."

"I've been missed," said Anne. "We go."

"Not yet," she cried, but they disappeared into the shadows of the little hillside like one cloud into another. Anne stared after them a moment, then picked up her blanket and pillow.

"Here I am," she called as she approached the excited group in the court yard. "I've been trying to sleep out doors."

Blaze Again

A PLANE flew into camp next morning while all the members of the expedition were at breakfast, with the exception of Diana who always slept late.

"Remain where you are," said Philip sharply as the others would have risen to flock to the landing field. "I presume it is Gregory Sherwood carrying out his threat. Please remember how the Chief feels about this interference with our activities. Sherwood does not come as a friend to the expedition."

No one could disagree with him on that, but Beth voiced her disappointment.

"He's still a human being and a white note and it's pretty thrilling to have that kind of company in this hole—no matter what his intentions are."

Philip ignored her remarks.

"As acting head of this expedition I shall meet him first. Finish your breakfast." He rose and went out on the porch and shut the screen door firmly behind him.

The others smiled ruefully at each other. They didn't like his manner but there was no disloyalty.

Diana had evidently heard the plane and dived into clothes. She appeared in the enclosure formed by the tents and huts. Philip called to him and sent her inside. Beth grinned at Anne.

When Philip walked out to the group of chairs under the cottonwood trees in the center of the enclosure to meet the visitors, human nature could stand no more. Those inside the house moved discreetly towards the door and windows where they could see and hear without being seen.

Sherwood's tall form led. He was dressed in spruce, olive green whipcords, and did not look as if he'd spent a week trying to eat and drink Dao Tai under the table. In fact, he appeared very trim and fit and sure of himself. Anne thought, her mind hardening against him despite her racing heart.

Mackey followed, carrying a brief case.

Sherwood and Oliver exchanged a crisp greeting and handgrip. Then the former spoke in his clipped voice.

"Dr. Oliver, I've been commissioned to you by the governor of the Province as his official representative. I am here to observe the work of the expedition and assist where I can."

"You're too late," Philip interrupted him sharply. "There's a man on the way from Chuka to represent the government."

Sherwood reached for his brief case. "You must have misunderstood. I am the man they meant."

Church to Observe 150th Anniversary

Freeman Photo

One of the oldest churches in the county is the picturesque red structure on a hill just above route 9-W at Ulster Park shown above. Special services will be held both Saturday and Sunday in observance of the anniversary. Shown in the inset is the pastor, the Rev. George Berens.

Church Will Give 150th Anniversary Service Program

The Ulster Park Reformed Dutch Church will celebrate its 150th anniversary Saturday and Sunday, June 14 and 15.

On Saturday evening the Ladies' Aid and the consistory of the church will hold a reception at the church at 8:30 o'clock, at which time they will welcome all members of the congregation and friends for a social get-together.

On Sunday morning there will be an anniversary service at 11 o'clock, when guest speakers will assist the pastor, the Rev. George Berens. This will be a union service for the Port Ewen Reformed congregation, the St. Remy Reformed congregation and the congregation of the Union Center Church, all members of the Ulster Park Church.

On Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the history of the church since its organization in 1791 will be given in reading and picture.

Part 1 shows the 93 signers, who petitioned the Classis of Kingston for the privilege of organizing a church at Klyn, Esopus. Scene 2 of part one shows the installation of the new consistory.

Part 2 will picture some of the congregation of that day choosing the site for the present building. Part 3 will deal with the dedication of the church and Part 4 will be a short Children's Day service by the Sunday school of today.

The regular church choir will be assisted by the choir of the Port Ewen Church.

The public is invited to all services and many former residents of the community are expected to return for this anniversary observance.

ing of the nursing committee of the Town of Rochester held in the Methodist Church Hall, Thursday evening, June 5, the following officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. Edward Davenport; Vice-President, Mrs. Morris Cohen; Secretary, Mrs. William Anderson; Treasurer, Mrs. John Miller.

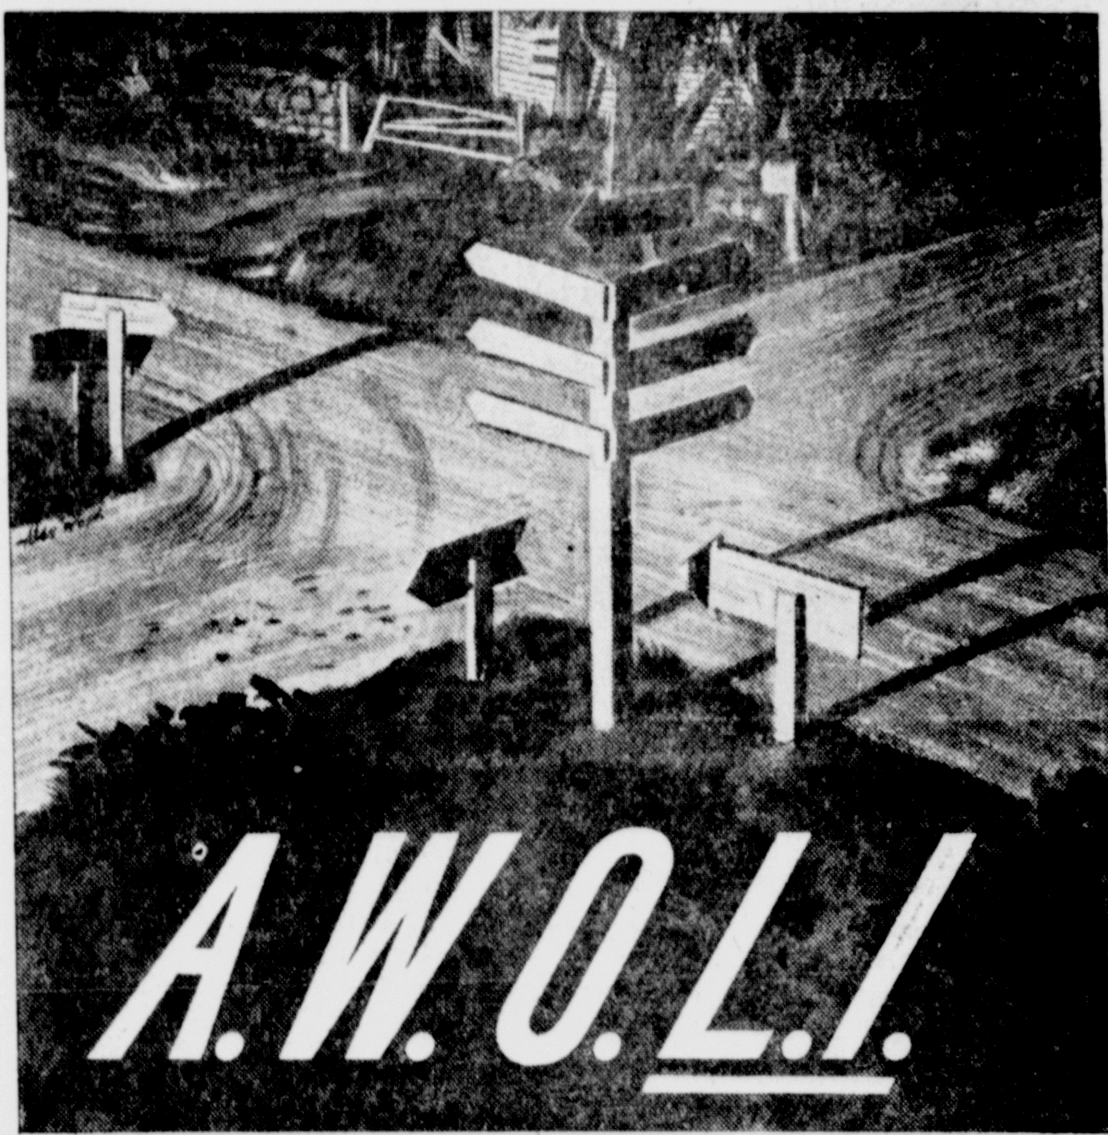

Ready for Winter

Richmond, Va. (AP)—During a recent heat wave, E. C. Barrett, Jr., reported to police, someone broke into a storage locker on North Plum street and stole an electric fan—and a pair of ice skates.

Naval Academy 'Dough' Boy Annapolis, Md. (AP)—Piebes (freshmen) at the U. S. Naval Academy here traditionally are required to memorize each day's menu as part of their hazing and must be able to repeat it on request of any upperclassman. Among the midshipmen is one who has turned this state of affairs to account. He gets the menus ahead of time, has them mimeographed, and sells 'em to piebes in advance at 10 cents a copy. Thus they gain extra time for memorizing them, he gains an extra $25 a week.

'Possum Hunt Emporia, Va. (AP)—F. D. Mitchell bagged nine 'possums without dog or gun. During the cleaning-up of a storehouse on his property, a mother 'possum and eight young 'possums were found.

Reports Show Something Is Wrong Between Reds and Nazis

Petroleum Companies Make Greater Use of Barge Canal

Albany, N. Y., June 13 (AP).—With ocean-faring craft pressed into other defense services, petroleum shippers are increasing use of New York's barge canal to help forestall a shortage of oil.

A spokesman for the state division of canals disclosed today that more and more large oil companies are using the system as a means of getting crude oil to New York city refineries.

"If there is enough oil at the source," said John J. Bryan, canal traffic manager, "there is no question but what shipments via the barge canal system should help alleviate the situation."

The oil, he explained, is pumped into Buffalo from the Oklahoma and Texas fields through a pipeline completed less than a year ago. There it is placed on barges for shipment to the New York refineries. Previously, most of the supply came to New York via ocean-going barges.

Wright Views Planes With Wonder, Sadness

Co-Inventor of Modern Aircraft Says He Never Visualized Use in Battle

Cincinnati, June 13 (AP).—Orville Wright, who with his late brother Wilbur, gave modern flight to the world, reflects with wonder—and sadness—upon the uses to which the airplane has been put.

The Dayton, O., man who in December, 1903, soared from the sands of Kittyhawk, N. C., now is within two months of the three-score-and-ten mark.

"Just to think," he mused, "Wilbur and I flew behind a little thing of four cylinders that developed all of 40 horsepower, maybe 44."

As he spoke, Wright fingered the cylinder heads of a 1,700-horsepower airplane motor weighing more than a ton—the first produced at the new Wright Aeronautical Corporation's Lockheed plant, dedication of which he saw yesterday as guest of honor.

"In a sense, I guess we didn't know what we were doing when we built our first plane," he went on. "We never envisaged the plane as a terrible engine of war, certainly. But there will always be someone who will abuse anything. That has always been my answer when people ask whether I would have attempted our early experiments had I been able to foresee all the terrible destruction that has come from the air."

After they returned from Kittyhawk in December, 1904, the two brothers and two helpers worked until May to piece together a motor for their next plane.

"And today," said Wright, "officials tell me this plane is producing at a rate of close to 100 a month and by next June it will be 1,000."

The bicycle repair shop in which the Wrights' early ships were built was "little bigger than that entrance hall you see there," he said and pointed to a 20 by 20 foot enclosure.

Navy Day Program For Boys Planned At 'Y' on June 20

Navy Day will be observed at the local Y. M. C. A. for boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years on Friday evening, June 20, at 7:30 o'clock when a special navy program will be given in charge of Chief Machinist Mate H. L. DeHart of the U. S. Navy. This is the first of a series of programs designed to educate the younger generation of the importance of the American way of life.

City Treasurer Lester C. Elmendorf, who served in the U. S. Navy during the first World War, is chairman of the committee arranging the program for Navy Day at the 'Y'.

The musical portion of the program will be in charge of the Junior American Legion Band of Kingston Post of the American Legion, who are arranging an appropriate musical program for the evening.

Several movies will be shown depicting life in the U. S. Navy. One of the principle pictures to be shown is titled "Eyes of the Navy" showing the air arm of the navy in action.

While attendance will be free it is being limited to 250 boys between the ages of 12 to 18, who may obtain without charge tickets of admission from Mr. Elmendorf, at the 'Y' or at the American Legion building on West O'Reilly street.

British Blast Ruhr Region in Heaviest Raid by Bombers

London Acknowledges Six Planes Are Lost in Foray; Nazis Are Turned Back

London, June 13 (AP).—Many an industrial building was blown into the sky and numerous fires were started last night in Germany's great manufacturing region, the Ruhr Valley, by a large force of British bombers in the heaviest raid of the war on that region, it was claimed officially today.

The blasting, fiery success cost the R.A.F. six planes acknowledged missing from the bomber command.

At home the R.A.F. fighter command was reported to have turned back a formation of Messerschmitts, retaliation-bent, in a five-minute battle 20,000 feet above the southeast English coast this afternoon.

Several sharp bursts of cannon fire were heard and, after one long burst, a plane dived with a loud scream that died out over the sea.

The attack on the Ruhr "was the heaviest carried out in a single night against this industrial area and a great weight of bombs was dropped," said the air ministry's communique.

While the bomber command was attacking the smoky Ruhr, planes of the coastal command attacked docks at Brest, France, and Antwerp, Belgium, and also targets near Rotterdam, the Netherlands. One plane failed to return.

It was the second consecutive night attack on the Ruhr. Nazi fighters at the same time raided parts of eastern England.

First reports indicated the German night raiders had caused no casualties, but the government said later it had learned that "at one town in East Anglia there were a small number of casualties, some of which were fatal."

One Nazi plane was reported destroyed.

Cuban Builders Spurt

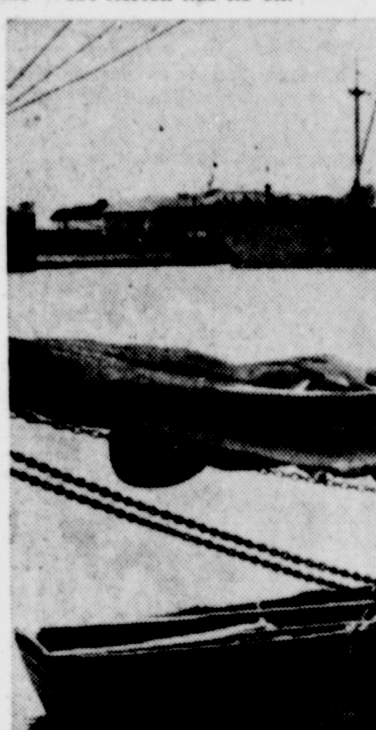

Expecting the Rent Adjustment Law to expire on March 25, builders in Cuba speeded up construction and broke records. Building permits granted in Havana in the first three months totaled 122, compared with 79 in the corresponding period of 1940. When March 25 arrived the Government extended the law, which exempted new buildings from certain taxes and reduced water rates, and another building spurt started.

Eight hours from Brazil, as the bomber flies, lies this fortified city, chip on the dark continent's great shoulder and control point and capital of French West Africa's 1,500,000 square miles. It commands the sea routes over which ride vital European requirements—meat and grain from the Argentine, coffee and rubber from Brazil, oil from Venezuela.

Guarded by three forts and French land batteries, Dakar is a strong sea base from which an occupying force could endanger main British convoy routes in the South Atlantic. The "Nazi threat" extends to it, President Roosevelt has declared.

The city, acquired from Britain in 1815, has rail connections with St. Louis, 160 miles up the coast to the north, and is linked with French Morocco by a very poor highway. Population is estimated variously at from 40,000 to 70,000 persons, one in each seven a sun-helmeted white. Ships going westward from it carry peanuts, rubber, cacao and timber; those coming in must bring petroleum, for West Africa has no oil.

The very largest ships can anchor at Dakar, whose artificial harbor is one of the best on the entire west coast of Africa. It is protected by an island and two breakwaters, has modern docks and loading machinery along with a good naval drydock and a torpedo-boat basin. In German hands, the city would be a constant menace to British convoys plying between Cape Town and South America.

DAKAR: African Jumping Off Place For Points South American

Dakar sprawls along the coast at the very hump of Africa, a strange city of mud huts and modern homes. Old World bazaars and up-to-date movie houses. Most white people live on high land well back from the shore, natives on the colorful, cosmopolitan waterfront.

Reserve Officers Begin Six-Weeks' Training at Camps

Plattsburg Registers 359 From 16 Schools; 110 Will Be Instructed at Pine Camp

Albany, N. Y., June 13 (AP).—More than 600 Reserve Officers Training Corps Students at two New York army posts begin today six weeks training which will lead to active duty for some of them.

At Plattsburg barracks, 359 candidates are registered from 16 schools, mostly in the Second Corps area but some from as far west as Los Angeles, Calif.

About 40 officers will instruct them, under command of Colonel George R. Koehler, professor of military science at Rutgers University. A provision company from Fort Dix, N. J., will participate in demonstrations.

At Pine Camp, near Watertown, 110 students are expected from Cornell University, 35 from St. Bonaventure College and 115 from Princeton University.

The war department announced recently more than 8,000 young officers will be called to active duty as second lieutenants on their graduation from college and completion of summer R.O.T.C. training at 31 army posts. Those who have not finished college will not be called immediately. The R.O.T.C. summons was reported to be an unprecedented step.

Mud Stops Doctor

Because a doctor and an ambulance driver refused to go through mud in the street to reach his home, his wife died through lack of medical attention, according to the public complaint filed by Francisco Mut of Rosario, Argentina, Mut said his wife was suddenly taken ill and he called the Asistencia Publica for an ambulance, which was sent, but on arriving in the neighborhood the doctor and driver refused to go into the mud.

Berlin Asserts Planes Destroy Anglo Shipping

Berlin, June 13 (AP).—German planes sank 28,000 tons of British shipping space last night and also destroyed eight British planes, the high command asserted today.

Four merchantmen were said to have been sent to the bottom in St. George's Channel and four others damaged heavily in those waters off the Scottish east coast.

Four British planes were shot down by night chasers and anti-aircraft guns during a raid on western Germany in which several civilians were killed or wounded and a number of apartment houses destroyed or damaged, the daily war bulletin said.

Two others were destroyed by chasers while attempting to fly to Norway and two multi-motored planes were said to have been destroyed during German raids on air fields in south central England, the communique said.

"In the period from June 6 to June 12," the high command added, "the enemy lost a total of 37 planes, whereof 26 were shot down by night chasers in air fights, seven by anti-aircraft and four by naval units. In the same period seven of our own planes were lost."

Siberia Bars Travel

Due to war in Europe the trans-Siberian Railway is selling tickets from Japan to only four European countries—Russia, Germany, Sweden, and Italy, it is reported in Tokyo. No through railway tickets will be available in Japan for the three Baltic states, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Finland or the Netherlands. Russia has reduced its stations handling international railway passengers from 11 to three—at Moscow, Leningrad and Halikow.

'The Bug' Begins His Life Sentence

Charles Workman Taken to Trenton for Murder

Trenton, N. J., June 13 (AP).—Charles (The Bug) Workman, keeping silent on the case, started in state prison today a life sentence for the murder of Arthur (Dutch) Schultz, Fleggenheimer.

Workman was transferred from Essex county jail yesterday, calling out "come and see me in 10 to 20 years," as police whisked him away in a motor convoy.

After eight days of trial, Workman pleaded no defense to a charge of murder and was held 48 hours in the county jail as required before being sent to state prison. County detectives attempted to interview him concerning the Schultz slaying, but he would not talk.

Schultz and three lieutenants met death in a hail of gangland bullets in a Newark tavern in 1935.

Hunt's Circus to Play At Powell's Lot Monday

Monday will be Circus Day here when Charles T. Hunt's widely known three-ring circus will play both afternoon and night on the Powell grounds, just over the Washington avenue viaduct. This is the 49th annual tour of the circus, which was formed in Kingston.

The Hunt family, who have been engaged in the circus for nearly half a century, are former Kingston residents, and well known here. The circus has played Kingston many times and always with success.

This year's circus is said to be even larger and better than in former years. There will be many riding acts and plenty of funny clowns. The performance opens with the pageant "Happy Days."

Hunt's circus started out of Kingston just 49 years ago this year, and has never missed a season on the road.

Organization Committee Gives Partial Report on Subscriptions From Societies

Thursday evening a brief meeting was held for ward captains and workers who will take part in the house to house canvass to raise Kingston's quota of $4,700 in the nation-wide United Service Organizations, to receive their final instructions from Chairman Allen Baker and Secretary George Goodfellow.

Mrs. Sam N. Mann, chairman of the special committee on organizations, submitted a partial report showing that her committee had obtained subscriptions from Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local No. 25; Kingston Chapter, No. 155, O. E. S.; Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Jr. O. U. A. M.; the Hadassah; the Automotive Dealers of Kingston; Mystic Court, No. 62, Order of the Amaranth; Colonial Rebekah Lodge, No. 48; the B'nai B'rith, and the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel.

Mrs. Mann will submit the final report of her committee when it competes its work this week.

It is planned to hold a special program over radio station WKNY from 7 to 7:30 o'clock this evening. The program will feature the music of a large orchestra of members of the local Musicians' Union as its contribution to the campaign, and short addresses will be made by Chairman Baker and Mayor Heiselman.

Bottle Floats Far

After floating 1,000 miles or more in the ocean a beer bottle became the means of communication between a New Zealand soldier and his wife. Private L. E. McDonald, of the Twenty-First Auckland Battalion, wrote from his troopship. The bottle was picked up in the Great Australian Bight and the note sent to Mrs. McDonald in Paeroa. The note was signed by McDonald and three buddies, all members of the anti-aircraft platoon.

New York Counts 31 Murders Paid For at Sing Sing

Ossining, N. Y., June 13 (AP).—New York counted 31 murders avenged today with the electrocution of Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss and Martin (Bugsy) Goldstein, chief executioners of the fantastic Brooklyn murder syndicate.

Between 10 and 10:09 p. m. last night, the two men died in the Sing Sing electric chair. Goldstein was first, then Strauss grinning strangely.

It was hard to audit the books of the murder-for-money firm, but officers estimated Strauss and Goldstein had slain 31 persons.

They were put to death for strangling Irving Feinstein, small-time bookmaker and police informer. Feinstein's body was soaked in oil and burned in a vacant lot.

Nazis Kill 5,394 Persons in May In Bombing Raids

Home Security Ministry Announces Casualties and Reports 5,181 Persons Hurt

London, June 13 (AP).—German air raiders killed 5,394 persons in Britain and wounded 5,181 others during May, the Ministry of Home Security announced today.

Seventy-five additional persons were listed as missing and believed dead.

The announcement said the dead included 2,512 men, 1,994 women, 753 children under 16 years of age and 135 unclassified.

The injured included 2,930 men, 1,835 women and 416 children.

The figures for May were lower than those of April when 6,065 persons were reported killed and 6,926 injured.

From last June, when heavy raids against the British Isles began, through May 41,150 civilians have been killed and 53,037 injured, the latest figures indicate. Deaths may be higher, however, because some of those originally listed as hurt may have died.

The peak for monthly casualties was last September when 6,954 persons were killed and 10,615 injured. It was during September that the Germans made all-out daylight attacks.

Service Schedule At Agudas Achim

Agudas Achim services will be as follows: Kabbalah-Sabbath services will take place Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Saturday morning services will begin at 8:30 o'clock. Morton Honig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Honig, will celebrate his Bar-Mitzvah and deliver a speech. Rabbi Gershuny will address the Bar Mitzvah and the congregation.

The unveiling of the memorial for the late Baruch Yaakov Lipgar will be held June 15 at 2 o'clock in the Agudas Achim cemetery.

Rabbi Gershuny will broadcast services Tuesday, June 17, at 7 o'clock on the "Call of Israel Hour" over Station WKNY.

The last Young Israel services for this season will be held Saturday morning, June 21, in Agudas Achim.

J. Sable will officiate and Joseph Kline will deliver the sermon. The Young Israel history class will meet weekly Wednesday at 9 p. m., at 112 Hone street.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the congregation will hold the annual strawberry festival and card party at the synagogue lawn June 18. In case of rain it will be held indoors.

Bull Fights Stopped

Dr. Oscar Sigarra, president of the Band of Mercy, was menaced by a mob in Havana, Cuba, recently, when he protested against the use of banderillas during a bull-fighting exhibition. Up to the time of his protest the exhibitions had been adhering strictly to the law against banderillas — barbs stuck in the bull's back to infuriate it. Dr. Sigarra was protected by the police, who had to wield their clubs and draw guard machetes before the crowd fell back.

British Are Following Situation Thoroughly and Cripps Is at Home to Give Report

(Freeman Special News Service)

A review of half-obscured news over the last month and a half makes it pretty clear that something new has gone amiss between Soviet Russia and Germany, and it supports the reports of German demands on the Kremlin, backed by military pressure. But, while these demands may be military as well as political and economic, it would be rash right now to predict anything more than reluctant Soviet acquiescence in some of them and evasion, if possible, of others.

The British, who have made some very bad mistakes about Russia in the past, are going into the present situation very thoroughly. Sir Stafford Cripps, their ambassador to Moscow, has come home to report and there is a highly authoritative hint, designed probably for Russian papers to copy, that he may not go back.

A post-mortem examination of the brief war in Iraq makes out a good case for the assumption that Stalin let Hitler down rather badly on that oil country. Also, there is good reason to believe that Soviet economic help to the Reich has been very slim and is not picking up.

A few days after Stalin became premier of Russia and thus accepted responsibility to the Russians for the ways his policies are carried out, the Soviet Union re-established diplomatic, trade and consular relations with Iraq. At that time the Iraqis, led by the Rashid Ali Al Gailani and backed by German promises and a few German planes, were fighting a war with Britain.

Lot of Talk at Once

Almost at once there was a lot of talk about the Russians sending into Iraq what were, as in the Spanish war, cynically called volunteers. The Iraq radio reports, funneled through Germany, gave out a great air of confidence in speedy Soviet aid, and it looked as if Hitler, too, expected it.

However, so far as anyone has been able to find out, the U. S. S. R. did absolutely nothing to help the Iraqis to prolong the turmoil in Iraq, and the British cleaned it up.

All this time Hitler, in seeking to cement conquered Europe into the solid political bloc which he deems essential for ultimate victory, was pulling France into active collaboration and had, indeed, obtained the use of Syrian airbases for operations against the British in Iraq. At length he told the French that he and Stalin had reached an agreement whereby the Russian Ukraine, in the new order of things, was to serve as a breadbasket for all the hungry, beaten folks of the European continent.

This looked pretty good to the French and they put the story out. What they either overlooked or ignored was a highly significant report of May 22 which showed that spring sowings in Soviet Russia were some 50,000,000 acres behind 1940 and therefore that the Ukraine breadbasket, this year anyway, was going to be pretty tight.

Pretty Good Bet

It is a pretty good bet that Germany did not overlook it. Therefore there is at least logic behind the report that Hitler is now demanding a lease on the Ukraine, so he can raise the wheat he needs himself. The alternative may be the threat of invasion.

On the military side, it is possible that Hitler wants Russia to move into Iran to deter and threaten the British on that wide open Middle-Eastern flank, while he takes care of Turkey. Turkey still is Hitler's coveted route to Syria and the British Middle-East. His casualties in Crete (by German figures alone greater than in the preceding Balkan campaign) will make him think twice about a sea-air invasion of Syria or Palestine; even if he did obtain military passage through Russia, his troops enroute to Iran would have to make a route march equivalent to the distance between New York and Kansas City.

So why not let the Russians march into Iran for him, while he takes a short cut through Turkey, leaving Antonescu's unhappy Rumanian Army to help watch the Bessarabian flank?

This sort of aid for Germany holds out to Russia the alluring prospect of Persian spoils, but it is the kind of thing that Stalin, committed to a policy of peace and Soviet self-interest, may be mighty hesitant to risk.

FLASHES OF LIFE

Sketches in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Important Protection

Philadelphia—American warblers won't get shot in the pants if military authorities can help it.

A major product of a new armor factory here, is a thick plate to go under the seats of military airplanes to prevent what might be called "unlucky hits" from below.

Camel Hunt

Indianapolis—Decorators Joseph Evans, gathering up props after the Shriner's national convention, couldn't find 15 paper mache camels that had stood on downtown street corners.

He said they were worth $100 apiece and weren't insured, so police joined the search.

They found five in baggage cars, one in Union station and four in hotel rooms.

Bagged

Topeka, Kas.—Kansas floods produced a fish story with an ironic touch.

V. E. McIntyre, newspaper deliveryman, put his golf bag in his car so he could take part in a golf tournament at Lawrence later in the day.

His trip halted by high water, he calmly took out his No. 2 iron and bagged a dozen carp.

Can You Blame Her?

Des Moines—Today (Friday the 13th) Marjorie Smith gave up Iowa drivers license No. 13. She says she isn't superstitious but since obtaining the license two years ago she figured in two auto accidents; underwent two operations; suffered extensive burns on one arm while cooking; lost some valuables when her apartment was entered and robbed.

U. S. Gets New Base

Manitowish, Wis.—The army knocked the props from an acrobatic act which appeared last year with a circus when it induced Raymond J. Rosinsky, 25, Rosinsky, the catcher for four other men in the act, at one point held all four on his shoulders.

Looking Backward

(By The Associated Press)

One Year Ago Today

June 13, 1940—Paris declared open city; Germans, advancing on three sides, sight Eiffel Tower.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today

June 13, 1916—Russians cross Dniester in advance toward Lemberg.

Robbing the Cradle?

Oklahoma City, Okla. (AP)—Before the infant son of Representative and Mrs. Lyle Born (D, Okla.) was three weeks old, the sheriff in Creek county appointed him a deputy and ordered him to "report for duty."

PORT EWEN

for discussion of and suggestions for the program for the next year.

Parent-Teacher Association

Port Ewen, June 13—The Parent-Teacher Association of Port Ewen School No. 13 held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, June 11, at the schoolhouse. Following the monthly report of secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John Reynolds gave a brief resume of the year's expenses. Mr. Lewis's room won the book award for the month. Miss Adiska Conno read an article on "Parent Education," taken from the "National Parent-Teacher Magazine" and entitled "On the Home Front." Mrs. S. Tinnie, first president of the local organization, presided at installation of officers for the coming year. The meeting was then open

Village Notes

Port Ewen, June 13—Mrs. Robert Prax of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Lyman Ellsworth of Kingston were dinner guests of Mrs. Theresa Slater and Miss Alice Niese recently. Mrs. Prax is a sister of Lyman Ellsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Brink of Lake Katrine were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ellsworth last evening.

Mrs. Lillian Walker entertained the members of her card club last evening.

The State of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, has organized a motorized police "flying squad" to pursue criminals in the interior.

BIDDLE CONGRATULATES JACKSON

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson (left) whose nomination as a Supreme Court justice has been sent to the senate by President Roosevelt, is congratulated in Washington by Solicitor General Francis Biddle. Biddle has been mentioned as a probable choice to succeed Jackson as attorney general.

Orengo the Night Owl

New York (AP)—When the lights come on for night games at Polo Grounds Joe Orengo's face lights up with them. The reason: Joe is usually a better slugger at night than in the daytime. The new Giant star was the Cards' best in night hitting last year and in his first game in the dark at the Polo Grounds belted a homer and a single.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—The pros and cons of daylight saving haven't changed an iota since the days of flappers, drugstore cowboys, jazz and William S. Hart. The lines forming in Congress today over the proposed tinkering with time are just the same as those which fought the measure through to passage in 1918 and repealed it—over President Wilson's veto—in 1919.

Today, just as it was 20-odd years ago, it's a fight between cities and the farms—between agriculture and industry; with national defense and power conservation (for the present) on the side of industry and the cities. The men who are fighting against universal daylight saving today have not one word to add to the arguments of a generation ago—but those arguments are sufficiently strong to control a huge bloc of votes in the House and Senate. I'll try to summarize the cases of both sides.

For The Opposition:
1. Daylight saving adds an hour of darkness, instead of daylight, to the farmer's day.
2. Farm children, going a long way to school, have to be routed out by candle-light to get there on time.

3. During haying and harvest, the farmer operates by the sun, because it takes hours for the dew to dry sufficiently for baling or stacking.

4. The part of the standard time day when the sun beats down the hardest is from 12 noon to 1 p. m. and this is the time the farmer and his hands eat. Under daylight saving, he eats at 11 a. m. stand-ard time—or even at 10:30 if he lives midway in the time zones—thus having to work through the most unpleasant part of the day—after eating. (In some sections, it was claimed, the dew was just off the hay or grain, when it was dinner time and a whole hour of work was lost.)

5. Farmers who ordinarily take their reaction or attend farm meetings after sundown are so late getting home under daylight saving that the lose sleep.

6. Many farm hands refuse to work daylight saving hours, because of reasons listed here.

7. Commuting industrial workers rebel at getting up before dawn to make the day shifts.

8. Mothers, both on farms and in cities, complain that small children cannot be made to go to bed before sundown.

9. The purported saving in fuel

(1,000,000 tons of coal, it was claimed in 1918) and electrical power wasn't due to daylight saving at all—but to the government's economy campaigns.

For The Defense:
1. Daylight saving proved a great economic and industrial saving factor in the United States and 12 other nations during the World War.

2. It is more healthful, permitting more daylight working hours (thus easier on eyes and nerves) in industrial centers and permitting all daytime workers in factories and offices to get an extra hour of daylight for recreation.

3. It is working now, with almost complete satisfaction for one-fourth of the people in the United States, and almost every nation at war. It was working 23 years ago to almost complete satisfaction, for the United States and 12 other nations.

5. The farmers, whose only argument is a refusal to change their habits a little, are holding out against healthful, industrial and economic benefits which would accrue to the rest of the country.

6. In times of peace, the rest of the country might be happy to make this concession to the farmers' comfort—but in time of emergency, the farmer should be willing to make this sacrifice to proved benefits to industry, labor, office workers and conservation. That's just hitting the high spots and you can reduce any of these reasons to the personal and intimate. In the battle of 1918, when the first law was passed—and the battle of 1919, when it was repealed over the presidential veto, Congress and public antago-nists did just that. They are preparing to do it again. It could well be one of the big congressional battles of 1941.

Come on! Drive a Car with "Second Wind"!

YOU say a racehorse has "heart" when he can turn on the drive coming into the stretch and bring the crowd to its feet with an all-out finish.

Okeh—come try a car that can turn on extra wallop like water from a tap—and see what you would say about Compound Carburetion!

For this stunning Buick straight-eight swings you along sweetly on only half-carburetion as long as you're taking it easy in everyday sort of travel.

Only one of its two thrift-size carburetors works then, because that's all that's needed.

But step down on the gas treadle—and things happen.

A second carburetor opens up. Air supply as well as gas supply is increased. Power rises instant. You get your "stretch drive" any time you give the word.

But—and note carefully!—this isn't only for thrill.

This engine's actually more efficient because it has this "second wind."

It gives you a car that has the life and lift you like—and still delivers (on owners' say-so) as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon than previous Buicks did.

So in Buick you get a car not only bigger, roomier, smarter, more comfortable and greater in value than others, but one that is basically more able.

That would be important any time; it's all the more important now—at the low delivered prices your Buick dealer is asking.

Joking About Father's Day is Evidence of Ignorance — Only Fair to Show Father How Deeply We Love and Honor Him.

This coming Sunday (June 15) will be, as you probably know, Father's Day. And as you perhaps know too, though you may not have thought very much about it, Father's Day comes in for a great deal of fun-making—some kindly and some very cruel. And since it really comes down to a question of bad manners, I'd like to tell you that bad manners are nearly always evidence of ignorance, and that there are few evidences of ignorance greater than the Father's Day attitude of treating it as a joke at Father's expense—forcing him to appear in a light that is not of his making. Readers' letters tell me, though, I'm glad to say I have never come upon it personally, that in many American families Father is someone who is not as appreciated as he ought to be. Personally I can hardly imagine that this is true, because in my own experience, fathers have always been, and still are, "tops." It is true that of my new book it has been said that fathers are idealized. To this I can honestly reply that each father about whom I have written is as accurately portrayed as would have been possible with a candid camera. And so I for one want to enter my protest against a joke that isn't funny. I want to shout out loud to all sons and daughters, to STOP belittling Father's Day—as though it were something he thought of himself, something at that rather to his discredit. It is only fair to think of it instead as a day on which to show Father—instead of taking for granted that he knows—how deeply we love him.

that the question of correct seating in an automobile is ever brought up in your column, and I'm wondering if perhaps I am being supersensitive when I feel hurt at being put alone on the back seat of the car of some friends. They live in the country and I visit them often and enjoy my day with them—all except for this one occurrence. When they drive me back to town they always take for granted that I am to sit on the back seat alone and the wife gets in beside her husband. I feel that if anyone sits alone it should be his wife. (We're all about the same age in case that would affect your answer.)

Answer: If you were invited to go for a drive and nothing else, then I would agree with you that it would be more polite if you were asked to sit with either one or the other, unless of course their car were one of the newer models that has the gear shift on the wheel and you could all three sit in front together. But since your letter suggests that you often spend a long part of a day with them and that you know these people very well, it is understandable that they may feel that you, as well as they, are both tired and talked out and glad to be left quiet. Or put differently, that they think it will please you to be treated as they would treat a member of their family.

Young Mode Accents Femininity

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9746

The smart girl knows that the chief purpose of her summer date-time frocks is to make her look PRETTY! And that's why Marian Martin has designed this junior miss dress, Pattern 9746. A youthful, buoyant style, the side sections of the basque bodice curve right around to meet the low back seam, giving you willowy, long-waisted lines. The front bodice panel forms a low point at the waist and the skirt has a light-hearted flare. You may trim the low neckline with a self-fabric bow or buttons! For a feminine, dress-up touch, have the sleeves in brief ruffled caps; for a more tailored look, use straight, short sleeves. Whatever you do, order this pattern without delay!

Pattern 9746 may be ordered only in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18. Size 13 requires 2½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins for this MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

War Work Calms Women

War work is helping women and they will be better-tempered after the war, according to a chiropodist of Johannesburg, South Africa. When uniforms are worn high heels are discarded in favor of lower-heeled shoes of the brogue type. Consequently, he says, the women are walking with their feet in the position intended by nature. He has long been of the opinion that many nerve disorders suffered by women are a direct result of their feet being constantly encased in high-heeled shoes.

Talented Ensemble
Presents 'Rigoletto'

The presentation of Giuseppe Verdi's opera, "Rigoletto," last evening delighted the audience at the Woodstock Playhouse. Under the auspices of the Kingston Italian-American Club, Inc., the American Concert Association brought its streamlined version to this locality. The association is formed to give young American artists the advantage of working with trained and experienced artists and the opportunity to develop their art and at the same time bring this form of concert to the American people.

The cast in last evening's performance included John C. Rossi as the Duke of Mantua; Reed Lawton as Rigoletto; Nino Carboni as Sparafucile; Agata Borzi as Gilda; and Dolores Cassinelli as Madalena. They represented a talented group of singers with a thorough knowledge of their art. They were accompanied by an orchestra composed of young American students. Under the direction of Enrico Morelli, one of the youngest masters in the country, they gave a brilliant rendition of Verdi's sparkling music.

This miniature version of "Rigoletto" was given in three acts and included the famous arias better known of which are "Carone" sung by Miss Borzi as Gilda; the Duke's familiar "La Donna E Mobile"; and the "Quartetto" by the Duke, Madalena, Rigoletto and Gilda.

The story of the opera was woven skillfully around the scenes by Narrator Milo Wood. It concerns the tragic tale of the hump-backed court jester, Rigoletto, and his daughter, Gilda. The Duke of Mantua, who is the Don Juan of the opera, dressed as a student woos young Gilda. His noblemen abduct her and her father, Rigoletto, finds her at the palace with the Duke. He plots the Duke's death with Sparafucile, a bandit inn keeper. But in the meantime, the Duke has been courting Sparafucile's sister, Madalena, who begs her brother not to kill the Duke, whom she has hidden in the inn. Sparafucile promises not to kill the Duke but will strike down the first man to pass his doorway. Gilda having overheard this conversation, dressed as a man, comes to the inn and is stabbed by Sparafucile. Rigoletto returns at midnight to receive the body of the Duke. As he is about to dispose of it, he hears the Duke singing his famous "La Donna E Mobile." In a frenzy he finds the body to be that of his daughter. With her dying breath, Gilda proclaims that she is happy to die for her lover. Thus in her death, Rigoletto realizes that the curse which had been placed on him for a former folly had been fulfilled.

West Park Group to Repeat Play

Friday evening, June 20, the Dramatic Club of the Church of the Ascension, West Park, again will present its three-act play, "The Meddlesome Maid" by Charles George. It was given to a capacity crowd assembled in the Ascension Parish House on June 6. The presentation proved so successful that it was decided to repeat the performance under the auspices of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, Highland. Tickets may be purchased either from the parishioners of Holy Trinity Church or members of the cast. The cast includes Edward J. Cochran, Beatrice Gullian, Louis Hermance, Amy Cochran, Myrtle Jordan, Harold Jones, Penelope Tisler, William Jordan, Mary Oxholm and Leslie Mott. The play is under the direction of Mrs. Julia zur Nieden and is produced through special arrangement with Walter Baker and Co., Boston, Mass.

No. 7 Faculty Holds Dinner

As a closing gesture for the school year, the faculty of School No. 7 motored to Point Inn, Staatsburg, Wednesday evening, for dinner. Miss Ethel Salzman had charge of all arrangements. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. John J. Finerty, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harold Darling, Mrs. Carl A. Weber and the Misses Dorothy Elston, Margaret Falvey, Sadie Feldman, Florence Gorse, Louise Heitzman, Sadie Lutzin, Elma Smith, Anne Powers, Florence Simon, Anne Whalen and Marjorie Zoller.

Guest of Mrs. Lehman

Mrs. John M. Cashin was a guest of Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman at a luncheon and bridge held Tuesday at the Albany executive mansion, when the Governor and Mrs. Lehman entertained the mayors and their wives of the state, who were in attendance at the 32nd annual meeting of the New York State Conference of Mayors and other public officials.

Home Bureau Annual Picnic

The Kingston Home Bureau spent an enjoyable day's outing yesterday. It was the occasion of its annual picnic, which was held this year at the home of Mrs. Charles Seligman on the Spillway road. A buffet luncheon was served to the large group of members and friends. During the days the homes of Mrs. Edward Kelley and Miss Allen were also visited. At all three places, Miss Gertrude Snyder, chairman of the Ulster County Landscape Committee, described the various types of landscaping and gave interesting views on the subject. There was also opportunity for short walks through the spacious grounds of the Seligman home.

Surprise Shower for Prospective Bride

A surprise shower and dinner were given Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. Helen Long, whose coming marriage to Charles Murphy will take place Sunday at St. Mary's Church. The affair was held at Schenck's Inn, Albany avenue extension and was attended by 30 of the girls from Montgomery Ward's, where the bride-elect is bookkeeper. Above is shown a group at the party. Mrs. Helen Long is seated at the extreme right of the group on the floor. Directly behind her is her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Lynch.

Werrenrath To Sing
At Church Service

REINALD WERRENRATH

Reinald Werrenrath, one of America's most famous baritones and formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Co., will be the guest singer at the morning service of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, Sunday at 11 o'clock.

His numbers will be "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" by Ambrose, and "Lord God of Abraham" from Mendelssohn's oratorio Elijah. He also will sing the baritone solo in "A New Heaven and a New Earth" from Harvey Gaul's oratorio, The Holy City, to be sung by the choir.

Mr. Werrenrath was scheduled originally to sing over short wave broadcast to Scandinavia for the National Broadcasting Co. but, deferred his broadcast for one week. The Washington Times says of Mr. Werrenrath, who appeared in a concert in Pierce Hall last week, that "he still is one of the great Elijahs of his or any generation" and, "If it has been implied that Reinald Werrenrath has retired, that impression must be corrected at once. No voice so virilely resonant, no art so vital in every interpretative resource should be muted by circumstance."

To Entertain This Evening

Mrs. John G. Myers Hilton, as president of the Junior League of Kingston, will entertain this evening at her home on Green street, after the panel forum to be held on national defense. Guests will be: Thomas A. Horton, Mayor and Mrs. Conrad Heisler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feeney, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hanstein, Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCaffery, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Preston, Dr. and Mrs. Lester Sanford and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kurdt; the Junior League officers and their husbands, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth D. LeFever, Dr. and Mrs. Charles O'Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. N. LeVan Haver, and Mr. and Mrs. John Schoonmaker; Dr. and Mrs. Richmond F. Meyer of Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Meyer is the director of Region 2 in which the Kingston Junior League is located. Miss G. W. Ynedd Owen, staff member of the A. J. L. A. from New York city also will be a guest. Junior League representatives from Poughkeepsie and Newburgh also are invited.

Grimaldi-Annacone

Marlborough, June 12—Last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Mary's Church, Marlborough, Miss Lucille Annacone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Annacone, became the bride of John Grimaldi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Grimaldi of Newburgh. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Hanley in the presence of members of the families and many friends. Miss Grace Annacone, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Joseph Colletti was best man.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a fingertip veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Festa, after which Mr. and Mrs. Grimaldi left for a wedding trip to Tampa, Fla. They will make their home in Newburgh.

Church Clambake Announced

The Clinton Avenue Methodist Church will hold its annual clambake this year in Forsyth Park, Tuesday, July 22. The clambake will be prepared by the Greenwell Brothers, sons of the late Rev. Ernest Greenwell, a former pastor of the Clinton Avenue Church, who inaugurated the annual church clambake a number of years ago.

The Greenwell Brothers are well known throughout the Hudson valley for their fine preparations of excellent clambakes and they have never failed to live up to their reputation to please their patrons.

The usual complete menu will be served. Tickets will go on sale this week and may be obtained from members of the men's club who are sponsoring the bake for the church. Reservations may be made by phoning 1951. Bake will be served rain or shine. Entire proceeds for Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

To Attend Conference

Nine delegates from the Kingston, N. Y., district of the Prudential Insurance Co. will attend the business conference to be held in Atlantic City, N. J., June 18, 19, and 20. This meeting is held every two years and representatives are chosen by their outstanding records. Attending from this district will be Superintendent William Rose; Assistant Superintendents John F. Edwards and Henry Schantz; Agents Robert Cullum, Aaron Lipkin, Gerald E. O'Neil, all of Kingston, LeRoy Vogt of Hurley, Robert A. Phoenix and John W. Guldenstern of Catskill.

Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Greene, 35 Fullerton avenue, Newburgh, of the engagement of Miss Mae DeHart, daughter of Mrs. Greene and the late Edward DeHart to Arthur Peper of Woodstock, son of Mrs. David Myer and the late William Peper. The wedding will take place in August.

Miss Misasi Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Misasi of Glasco announce the engagement of their daughter, Lillian, to Eugene Knapp, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Knapp of Kingston.

Musical Held
By Piano Pupils

A group of pupils from the piano class of Miss Ethel Mauterstock enjoyed a musicale and social evening at her studio, 103 Hone street, Wednesday evening. All of the numbers were artistically rendered and enthusiastically received.

The guests of the evening were Miss Vivian Swart, Donald Finley, former pupils of Miss Mauterstock, and Miss Joyce Burhans. Miss Swart, accompanist for the high school Glee Club, and Mrs. Finley, who has done accompanying work in college told of their experiences and the place music plays in their lives. Miss Joyce Burhans sang three numbers accompanied by Miss Swart. Much interest was shown by the pupils as William Anderson explained how the oboe was played and gave demonstrations.

At the conclusion of the program, a musical quiz was held between ten pupils from the M.J.M. School with Mrs. Edgar Freese, Miss Jane Mauterstock and the guests of the evening acting as judges. Highest rating was received by Miss Janice Hyde, second, Dolores Legg; third place, between Anne Donovan and Verna Franz. Refreshments and a social hour brought the evening to a close.

The program follows:
Melody in F Rubinstein
Donald Freese
Reading: "It Can Be Done" Edgar Guest
Richard Van Bramer
First Movement Moonlight Sonata Beethoven
Leonard Siskind
An original composition: "Why I Like Music"
Donald Freese

"Attention My Dear Children"
Are you lucky and have a father you can call a father. If you have, then show your gratitude towards him this coming Sunday, June 15th, because it is Father's Day. This day has been set aside to honor and show gratitude to whom gratitude is due. Show him you are a thankful son or daughter. Do your utmost to make it as pleasant as possible. If you can, invite him to go with you out to church and after take him for a ride out in the country.

Stop at the Famous Schoentag's Hotel and Restaurant on 9W and treat him to a Real Good Home Cooked Turkey, Chicken or Steak Dinner

It is reasonable. He will enjoy it. Show him your gratitude after, take him for a nice long ride through the country. It is no time like this Sunday. Where you can repay him for all the good deeds—for all the work he has done for you to bring you up and raise you to be someone to look up to some day.

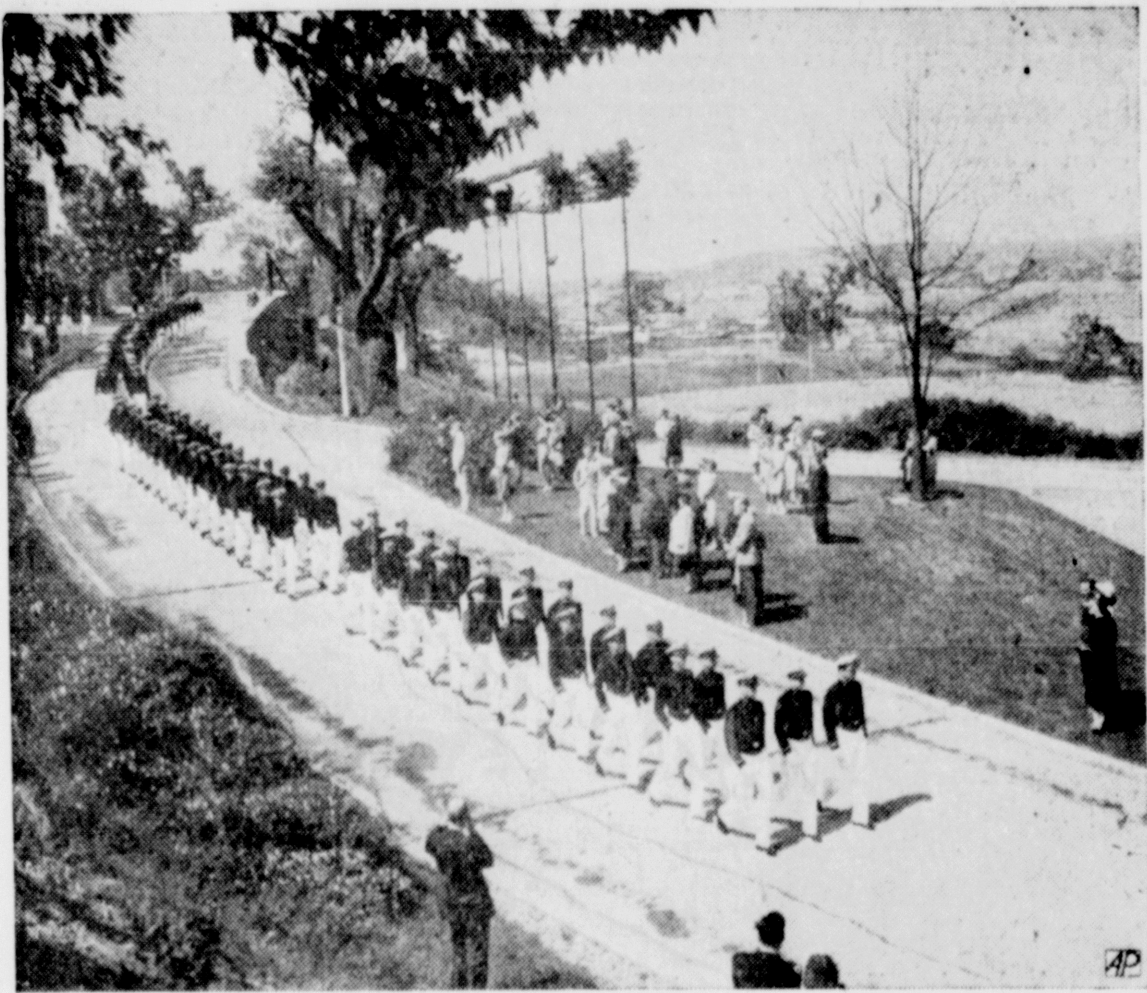

A father and mother is only here on this earth to perform their duties and it isn't for very long. They pass on again to make room for their children. So honor and respect them while you have them. Show them you love them. You make them so happy.

My dear children: You grow up into man and womanhood and get married. Then you will face the same problems as your father and mother have faced and you think back for all the wrongs you have brought on to them and you wish you had been different towards them but it might be too late then.

Derringer in Subduing Boston Braves Displays Ability as Crafty Hurler

Pitches Four-Hit Ball to Defeat Braves, 1 to 0; Giants Stop Bruins in Pitching Spectacle

American Games

Red Sox Divide Double Bill With Browns, Yanks and Athletics Win

(By The Associated Press)
A lot of tears have been shed this season over the failure of big Paul Derringer to dominate the National League pitching scene as he did in leading the Cincinnati Reds to two pennants and a world championship.

The Duke, at 33, is a little fatter and a little slower than he was last year. He was hurt during spring training and had some trouble getting started. This was not helped by the lamentable lack of hitting from his teammates.

But 10 years in the big time have made this huge right-hander one of the craftiest hurlers in the business. Game in and game out, even now, he can do as much with his curves, knucklers, changes of pace and control as most of the rubber-armed specialists.

He showed how tough he can be yesterday by pitching four-hit ball to beat the Boston Braves, 1-0. The Reds made only five singles themselves off young Art Johnson, a southpaw, but they managed to link two of them with a walk for a run in the first inning.

That was all Derringer needed. He gave just one base on balls, fanned a half-dozen, and let runners get as far as second base only three times. It was Paul's second straight win, coming on top of his 3-2 triumph last Sunday over the then league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers and helped take some of the disappointment out of the five times he had been beaten by one run this spring.

The day's only other National League game also was an air-tight pitching spectacle—between Carl Hubbell and Bill Lee, with the New York Giants stopping the Chicago Cubs, 2-0. Lee allowed six hits to Hubbell's eight, but gave a run in the first inning on two singles, a walk and a fly, and two errors brought another in the fourth.

In the American League the Boston Red Sox divided a double-header with the St. Louis Browns in odd affairs. The Sox scored four runs in the first inning of the first game and then were shut out for the next eight frames by the impressive relief hurling of Bob Munier. The Browns tallied five times in their half of the first inning and won 9-4.

The Red Sox were held to six hits in the second game while the Browns made seven, but Boston triumphed, 3-2, on Ted Williams' two-run homer. The scoring in each game was completed by the fourth inning.

The Philadelphia Athletics copped a nip-and-tuck struggle from the Detroit Tigers, 5-3, on Al Brancato's three-run circuit clout in the ninth inning after Pat Mullin had hit one with a mate aboard for Detroit in the seventh.

What with John Duncan Rigney withdrawing his request for draft deferment, Joe DiMaggio hitting his 12th homer of the season and running his hitting streak to 26 straight games, and Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Sox filing a protest, the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox had a high old time of it in their night game.

The Yankees finally won in the 10th, 3-2, on DiMaggio's four-bagger. But Dykes announced in the ninth he would protest, claiming that a spectator reached out and touched a ball hit by Red Ruffing and thus interfered with Myril Hoag's fielding. The Ruffing hit went for two bases and brought in the tying Yankee run.

Cancel Game Here Scheduled Tonight

Because of Work on New Lighting System

The baseball game scheduled this evening at the municipal stadium between the Kingston Recreation and the Schenectady All Stars has been cancelled due to the condition of the stadium.

Work on raising the steel towers for the new floodlight system requires outfield space and it was deemed advisable to call off the game rather than stage it under ridiculous ground rules.

Newburgh Softball

Tourney July 19

Sanctioned by Amateur Softball Association

The annual softball tournament of the eastern section of New York state which is sanctioned by the Amateur Softball Association will be held this year at Newburgh and sponsored by the Recreation Commission. This tournament will be held on Saturday, July 19, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Last season the tournament was held here. The Matteawan State Hospital team emerged victors in the district play-off and continued on to the finals in the state tournament at Rochester where they were defeated by the Eastman Kodak team who went on to win the national tournament.

The Delano-Hitch Recreation Park at Newburgh has splendid facilities for the district play-off as it is equipped with five softball diamonds having spacious outfields. Teams will be limited to 16 players including managers. Players must be signed up before the closing date of entries on Saturday, July 12. Teams will be required to furnish an official softball for the tournament with the winner of each game winning the ball for the next round of play.

Nothing to Stories Louis Is Through. He Has Everything

Champ Is Still Greatest Fighter of His Time; Boxes Better Than Conn. Says Expert

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, June 13 (AP)—Joe Louis will knock out Billy Conn in about three rounds next Wednesday night at the Polo Grounds. If it goes longer than that, Billy will be just plain lucky.

This is said after a personal tour of inspection of the champion's training camp at Greenwood Lake, just up the Hudson, where the large negro is getting ready to defend his championship.

There has been considerable talk about Louis being worn out by his strenuous campaign of the past spring, during which he has fought more often than necessary. It has been said and believed that Joe has turned into an old man.

There is nothing to it, folks. This Joe Louis still is the greatest fighting man you or I will see in a lifetime. He has taken them all on, one after the other. And it is your argument against mine when you say Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney could have whipped him.

Better Than Conn

There is nothing Joe Louis lacks to make him a great fighter. Yesterday I saw that he was a much finer boxer than Billy Conn. Against four sparring partners, who were doing their poor best to catch him, he picked off their punches with his right glove a flick at a time, and then tore them to shreds. Joe's trainer, old Jack Blackburn, twice had to call time prematurely to keep him from knocking a couple of sparring partners silly.

What makes it worse for Conn, a mere light-heavyweight trying to fight a big man, is that Louis is not feeling friendly about this fight. Joe reads the papers, and he has noted that Conn repeatedly has referred to him as a "dumb negro" and an "old man." While Louis realizes that a "ghost writer" has been responsible for these remarks, he still feels that Conn has condoned them, and he is sore about it. He intends to knock Billy on his head—quickly.

"You know I don't try to name no rounds," he said before he went into the ring. "I'd rather not. But I'll get him quick as I can."

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, June 13 (AP)—The oft-touted Grapevine says Greyhound, fastest trotter of all time, is lame and may never race again.

Pete Sarron, former featherweight champ, writes from Camp Blanding, Fla., that Tommy Gomez, the Tampa heavy we have been hearing so much about, looks like the next champion to me.

Lefty Grove, with only three games to go, will be the next number of baseball's exclusive "300 Club." That is, if he wins three more. . . . Chris Dundee, who manages Ken Overlin and is one of the smartest guys in the fight racket, picks Conn to lick Louis—says speed will do it. (Confidentially, we're leaning that way, too, but we'll withhold an official prediction for a few days.)

William Bram, owner of Challedon, says his big horse is coming along nicely and probably will tangle with Whirlaway before the year's over. And ladies and gents, should be a race!

A-Hunting a Bunting

To buy a little bunting, MacPheal went a-hunting. And passed out plenty froggy skins. To try to bring his Dodgers in.

Caught on the Fly

We suppose Bobby Riggs' appearance last week in the Kansas City tennis tournament was right in line with his duties as assistant publicity director at Presbyterian College in South Carolina. . . . Every time the White Sox have an off-day in Chicago Jimmy Dykes spends it at Notre Dame looking over the buildings. . . . Carl Newsome, sports editor of the High Point (N. C.) Enterprise, is in town steaming up the National A. A. U. senior women's swim championships to be held down there August 15-17. . . . If you don't read "The Modern T Formation," co-authored by George Halas of the Chicago Bears, Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford and Ralph Jones of Lake Forest College, you are missing plenty. . . . Elliott Cushing, sports editor of the Rochester Democrat-Chronicle, is very ill in a hospital. Shoot him a wire. . . . Here's a tip straight from the Kentucky feed-boxes—Sun Again (from the same stable as Whirlaway) to win the 1942 Kentucky Derby.

Rigney Decides To Enter Service

White Sox Hurler Will Be Inducted on June 20

Chicago, June 13 (AP)—Pitcher Johnny Rigney has decided to take his regular turn in the army draft after all.

The 26-year-old Chicago White Sox hurler said last night he had been ill advised in asking a stay, that he had withdrawn his request (granted by his local draft board but appealed to Washington by the Illinois selective service director) and that he would report for induction June 20 as originally scheduled.

She had lived in Kingston many years and after the death of her husband in 1939 she lived with her son, Andrew D., in this city, and then she went to live with her daughter in Springfield. She was a good friend and neighbor and her friends here in Kingston will be shocked to learn of her death. She leaves to mourn her loss a son, Andrew D., of this city, a daughter, Mary of Poughkeepsie, and a daughter, Mrs. Cecil Burnett of Springfield, Mass. The funeral will be held at the Franklin Street A. M. Zion Church Sunday at 2 p. m., with burial in Mt. Zion cemetery. Friends wishing to see Mrs. Johnson may call at the home of Ernest A. Kelly, 111 West Chester street, Saturday evening between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock.

You Soon Learn Piano In This Short-Cut Way

Music Adds To Vacation Fun
When you can play the piano, what a magic card of introduction you can take on vacation! Popular Tunes win you a welcome anywhere.

It doesn't take long to learn to play them. A clever chart, picturing "life-size" the most used part of the piano keyboard, will help you read music quickly. Right with each picture is its music staff note, so that you can see at once what key to strike for each note.

Then you can speed up your learning of popular pieces this way. Instead of playing all the notes in treble and bass, sometimes difficult to do, play the melody line with your right hand and harmonizing chords with your left.

What chords to play? You quickly learn basic chords, by numbers which correspond to numbered keys on your piano chart. The bar from "Swanee River" shown with our sketch gives you the idea. You can play those few chords (and a few more) throughout the piece.

Have fun playing the piano! Our 24-page instruction book, including piano keyboard chart, shows you how to read music, play chords in every key. Has three pieces for practice. Send 10 cents in coin for your copy of QUICK COURSE IN PIANO PLAYING to Kingston

Disease Check Shows British Very Healthy

In the face of predictions that air raids and crowded shelters would produce the specter of contagious disease epidemics stalking this land, the most recent public health statistics show that Great Britain in 1940 was appreciably healthier than it was the year before the war started. Particularly is this true in relation to contagious diseases.

In 1938 there were almost 100,000 cases of scarlet fever in Britain; in 1940 there were only 63,000. In 1938, more than 4,000 cases of dysentery were reported. In 1940 there were less than 3,000. In the year before the war there were 1,200 cases of enteric fever reported, and although the figure for 1940 rose to 2,800, most of these were in mild, paratyphoid groups and were not the old-fashioned, severe type.

Pneumonia also showed a slight increase, rising from 45,000 cases in 1938 to 46,000 in 1940, and this might be described indirectly to the air raids, which have shattered many windows and subjected a large part of the population to increased exposure in winter. Yet the increase in the number of cases is almost negligible.

However, figures on cerebrospinal fever might be the basis for measured concern. These rose from a negligible 1,200 in 1938 to more than 12,000 in 1940; but there is a qualifying factor in this increase in cases. Until recently this disease was mortal in about 60 per cent of the cases, but new drugs and methods of treatment have reduced the mortality in hospitals to as low as 5 per cent, and nervous complications, which frequently followed this disease, now are conspicuous by their absence.

Dairymen Discover New Way to Use Corn Syrup

GENEVA, N. Y. — Experiments carried on in the dairy laboratory of the New York state agricultural station here indicate that corn sugar or syrup may replace approximately one-fourth of the cane sugar now used in the manufacture of ice cream, ices and sherberts.

In a bulletin describing the experiments, Dr. A. C. Dahlberg said the most satisfactory results were obtained with ice cream when 25 per cent of the sucrose or cane sugar was replaced by corn sweeteners. "Based upon sweetness alone," Dr. Dahlberg said, "a pound of cane sugar was equal to 1.1 pounds of corn sugar or dextrose, 1.5 pounds of enzyme-converted corn syrup, and 2 pounds of corn syrup solids. When used in these proportions, the corn sweeteners showed slight but definite improvement in body and texture of ice cream which could be detected by consumers. Consumers were unable to tell whether corn sweeteners had been used, however."

A shift from all cane sugar, largely imported, to part corn sweeteners, entirely domestic, would represent the use of some 25,000 tons of the corn product by America's ice cream industry each year.

Corn syrups are said to have improved the body and textures of ices and sherberts noticeably.

Blonde Gives Army Boys, 24 of 'Em, the Runaround

CAMP ROBINSON, ARK.—Two dozen soldiers of the 137th Infantry Company F dined with a demure blonde from Little Rock at a recent social function.

To each she confided a telephone number.

But after the ball was over their delight turned to despair when they compared notes and found that all the numbers were different.

And despair turned to dudgeon when test calls were answered by the fire department, the police station, the dog pound and similar unromantic institutions.

Wiltwyck School Activities Listed

Confirmation was held at the Wiltwyck School on June 8, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The boys were confirmed by Bishop Campbell of New York at the outdoor shrine. The Rev. William Grier of Kingston and the Rev. T. W. B. Magnan, director of the school, accompanied Bishop Campbell. Twenty-nine boys were confirmed. Parents of the confirmed boys and other students came from New York in chartered buses to see the boys confirmed. Confirmation at the school will be an annual affair.

Miss Maude Duncan is resigning her position as nurse at the Wiltwyck School. Miss Duncan will attend summer school at Columbia University; she will take a medicine course and then take duties in a unit of the St. Phillip's School of Nursing in Richmond, Va. Miss Duncan has been efficient at the Wiltwyck School under the direction of Dr. H. Bibby of Kingston. Miss I. Taylor of Brooklyn and a graduate of the Lincoln School of Nursing, will take Miss Duncan's place.

Joseph Smith of New York will be the new counselor at the Wiltwyck School. Mr. Smith is a graduate of New York University, where he specialized in remedial work for retarded children.

Preparations are being made at the Wiltwyck School for the camp season. The theme for this year's camp will be Indian life, centering on the Delaware Indians, who settled in this territory. Additional features in the camp will be a pioneering section which will be self maintained by the boys, making their own living.

Mr. Dunbar has resigned his position as business manager at the Wiltwyck School. He is now assistant to the executive director of the South East House, community agency in Washington, D. C.

Central Lunch Wins

Last night at the M.J.M. diamond the Central Lunch edged out a close win over Troop 3. Storms led the Central batters with a homer and a double. Crosby had three hits for the losers one a triple. Amato also had three hits.

The Scouts put over a late rally but failed to tie the score by one run.

Batteries:
Central Lunch: DuBois and Storms.

Troop 3: Crosby and Lay and Hauptbauer.

New Bread White Bread
A new bread—a white bread—containing all the nutritious qualities of wholewheat bread, is now being offered the housewife. This feat of adding the vitamin quality of wholewheat bread to white bread is accomplished by the use of vitamin concentrate in the bread formula itself. It does not change the color, flavor or any other features of the bread. It simply makes a more nutritious product. The snowy whiteness we have been educated to like is still there. This bread, like any other bread, is good for toast, sandwiches, in recipes and for just plain eating with your meals. Its flavor and freshness are its popular features.

New York, June 13 (AP)—The stock market's lengthy come-back stalled today as profit selling came out in sufficient volume to depress quotations of most leaders.

The approach of a week-end served as an excuse for many customers to lighten commitments as insurance against possible upsets at home or abroad. Slipping tendencies came in after the opening and the direction was downward from then on. Declines generally were in fractions but scattered losses of one to two points for recently strong performers were in evidence near the final hour. Dealings slackened and transfers were at the rate of approximately 400,000 shares.

War news was no more disturbing than usual, brokers said, and the business picture maintained its optimistic aspect marketwise. The 10-day rally, however, inspired some selling on the idea a "corrective reaction" might be overdue.

Bonds and commodities were irregularly lower.

Prominent stocks on the retreat were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Loft, General Steel Castings Preferred, Consolidated Aircraft, Anaconda, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Du Pont, J. I. Case and Allied Chemical.

Welles Says Nazis Violated Treaty

prised the commander of the Robin Moor's nationality and destination. He spent 10 minutes before the report said, and when he reappeared the "abandon ship" command was given. Then came the end.

Undersecretary of State Welles was asked whether this relatively brief episode on the high seas — the ship sank in 23 minutes — would constitute a "grave incident" in the eyes of the government.

He declined any official comment, however, pending receipt of full information and a careful study of all facts related to the war's first loss of an American ship by direct belligerent action.

The detailed depositions of the survivors are on their way here from Brazil by special courier.

Welles did emphasize in a statement that the Robin Moor was a neutral ship, that she was bound for African ports outside combat areas, and that she carried a general cargo — ranging from steel rails to brassieres—but no arms, ammunition or other material of a military character.

A digest of international law prepared by Green H. Hackworth, legal adviser of the state department, and recently published by the department, stated that Germany, among other nations, adhered to a provision of the London naval treaty of 1930 which was designed to "humanize" submarine warfare and insure all possible precautions for the safety of passengers and crews of merchant vessels.

In Berlin an authorized German source said today "We won't be buffeted by American and English discussions concerning the Robin Moor."

"Whenever any ship with contraband sails for England we'll shoot at it, whether it is the Robin Moor, the Exmoor or anything else."

(The Robin Moor, 5,000-ton United States freighter which was sunk in the South Atlantic May 21, was bound for Capetown, Union of South Africa. She formerly was the Exmoor.)

(Survivors said a torpedo from a German submarine sent her down, although the submarine commander knew her identity.)

Esopus, June 13—Mrs. Jacobson of Chicago recently visited with Mrs. Percy Mott.

Miss Marjorie Mott, student nurse at the Methodist Hospital, in Brooklyn spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mott.

Mr. and Mrs. John Eastman and son, John Charles, of Hartford, Conn., spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Osborn. Mrs. Eastman's parents, The Eastmans came to take their daughter, Caroline, home. Caroline Eastman spent three weeks with her grandparents.

The Esopus school will close Friday, June 13. Miss W. House, teacher, has planned a picnic for the students and their parents at William's Lake, Friday.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Esopus Fire Department will meet Wednesday evening, June 18.

Mrs. Ann Carmichael of New York is spending a few week at the home of her friend, Mrs. G. H. Jones.

Buddy Jones, who is stationed at Fort Slocum, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Jones.

William Magnan, student at the Harvey School in Hawthorne, is home for his summer vacation.

Mary Louise Oxholm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodor Oxholm is now home from private school for the summer.

Parker Hall, student at the Harvey School in Hawthorne is home for the summer.

Penelope Hall is home for her summer vacation.

Headquarters Is Moved
Albany, N. Y., June 13 (AP)—New York's weather headquarters will be centered in Albany within the next few weeks through consolidation of meteorological work formerly shared by the Cornell University Bureau, Ithaca. The centralization, Chief Meteorologist Gustave Lindgren said today, will bring to headquarters her records compiled at the Ithaca bureau for more than a half century.

Nicaragua now has little unemployment.

together and devise a workable plan by that time. Otherwise, he indicated, he will be forced to take drastic steps.

According to a statement from the State Bureau of Audit and Control sent to the county treasurer in December last the N. Y. O. & W. owed Ulster county in unpaid taxes the amount of $30,022.44, covering the years 1936, 1937, 1938, and 1939. In addition to this County Treasurer Lyons says that there is due the sum of $7,935.59 unpaid taxes for 1940, making a total tax bill unpaid of $37,958.03. This does not include interest due.

At the city treasurer's office it was stated this morning that the railroad owes the city approximately $8,000 in unpaid taxes.

Everybody Has Ability

And Equipment to Sing
What fun to know how to sing—whether for just your own pleasure or to entertain friends.

And you can sing—everyone can sing! You may think you have a weak voice of no range. You may go into a shrill quaver singing such a simple air as "Three Blind Mice." But still you have all the equipment any singer uses; you simply haven't learned what to do with it.

The reason your voice breaks is that your breathing machine isn't working well. Learn to inhale deeply, expanding your ribs and stiffening your spine. Exhale slowly until lungs feel completely deflated.

To test the evenness of your breathing, stand before a candle. If the flame keeps steadily horizontal when you exhale you are breathing evenly.

As for the range of your voice, you can enlarge it with such simple exercises as this one:

Speak these syllables in a low, soft voice: BAH, BAY, BEE, BO, BOO. Hold the sound OO, gradually changing from a speaking quality into a soft singing tone.

Repeat in a slightly higher speaking tone, changing the OO to a singing tone as before. And continue—raising the voice a little each time—as long as you can without strain. Then lower the voice step by step.

Freeman Photo

One of the interesting features of the Ulster County Hobby and Crafts Show, which closed at the Y. M. C. A. last evening was the above show by the Eighth Grade Marionette Club of Saugerties. The eleven children who belong to the club collected old packing boxes and with a few tools and cans of paint made this attractive stage, which measures approximately 30 by 40 inches. Each child also has made his own puppet and works it for the performance. The play which the club likes best and the one given at the Hobby Show, was "Cinderella," revised a bit by the club. The children of the club are Doris and Daisy Duffy, Mary Hennegan, Mark Lemelman, Franklin Clum, Mary Emerick, Jean Campbell, Clara DuBois and Dolores Bach. Charles Cole is stage manager and stage lighting is under the direction of Donald Melius. Miss Avalda DeLand is faculty advisor for the group. Due to examinations in school the show was not given yesterday.

Crowds Attracted To 3-Day Exhibit At Local Y.M.C.A.

With a total attendance of approximately 1,500 people, Kingston's $25,000 Hobby and Craft Show closed a three-day showing in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening. So successful was the show that it was decided to hold another in the "Y" next year.

The closing night saw some new attractions added to the many exhibits of hobbies and crafts. John Pope, who has several hobbies, displayed his art in lettering, and his work attracted those who attended the show.

At the model airplane exhibit of the Kingston High School Airplane Club two of the members demonstrated how the models were constructed as did a member of the Kingston Model Railroad Club who was building the truck of a railroad car.

Another interesting exhibit was that of Arnold Cohn, who showed a collection of watch keys. Older readers will recall how they or their fathers had to wind their watches with keys.

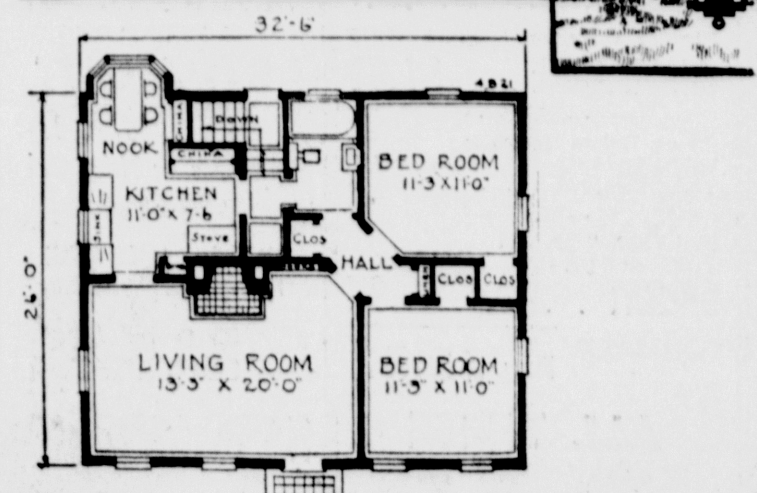

Many of those who visited the show said they had not realized there were so many interesting hobbies in Kingston, and many expressed regret that they had not thought of entering their hobbies.

Secretary George Goodfellow of the "Y" who has been kept busy with his regular duties in addition to those of the Hobby Show, and his work as secretary of the local U. S. O. drive in the city, said last night that he was pleased with the attendance and interest shown and that on behalf of the committee in charge, he desired to express his thanks to all those who helped to make the show a success.

Two men and a woman are reported to have been arrested nearly 100 times for picking pockets in Mexico City.

A PEDIGREED HOME

Bungalow for Small Family

AP Feature Service

This smart suburban bungalow, designed for a small family, is particularly interesting for the interior arrangement. The living room is a full 20 feet long, and a fireplace may be included if desired. The diagonal hallway connecting the two bedrooms and bath makes for extra closet space. The exterior design calls for finishing in wide siding, shakes or shingles. The shuttered windows and pleasantly conceived front door are added features.

This comfortable small home has been approved for use under the Federal Home Building Service plan, sponsored by the Federal Home Loan Bank board. Estimated cost, with basement, runs from $5,000 to $5,500, depending on locality.

1 quart firm ripe berries (select ones)
1/3 cup water
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter
1 baked crust
1 cup whipped cream (optional)

Wash, drain and hull berries. Reserve a cupful and mash rest. Add water, sugar blended with cornstarch, salt and juice to mashed berries. Slowly bring to boil and boil gently two minutes.

Stir constantly. Cook ten minutes in double boiler. Add butter and cool. Pour over rest of berries arranged in crust. Chill. Spread with cream and serve.

Wood Favored

Girard, O., June 13 (AP)—It was Craig Wood versus a field of 155 today as the $5,000 Mahoning Valley Open got under way over the dampened Mahoning Country Club layout. Despite the impressive array of golfing stars allied against the blond bomber from Mamaronck, N. Y., the dopesters and the early gallery fans favored the National Open champion.

Bantams Rained Out

Philadelphia, June 13 (AP)—Philadelphia's Tommy Forte must wait until Monday night for his chance to wrest the world's bantamweight title from Lou Salica. Light showers around weigh-in time yesterday and angry clouds which threatened more rainfall caused Promoter Herman Taylor to postpone the 15-round championship duel.

Color and Size of Flowers Depend Upon Their Diet

Flowers and vegetables of first quality can only be produced when the plants have abundant nourishment. Size, color, vigor and yield are all affected by feeding to a marked degree. The heaviest feeding should always be earliest, for it is at the start of their growth that plants most need stimulation. As they grow stronger and larger, they are better able to forage for themselves.

The spring flowering bulbs, herbaceous perennials, annuals and roses all benefit from a regular feeding program. Here is a feeding schedule to remind you when to feed your flowers.

Spring-flowering bulbs: Such as tulips, narcissus and hyacinths. Feed in early spring when foliage appears, at rate of one heaping teaspoon to one square foot of space surrounding plant. Keep away from stalk of plant and work into soil. Repeat application when buds start to appear.

Established perennials: Such as iris and peonies. Feed in early spring before plants appear, broadcasting plant food in the surface of the soil at the rate of one rounded tablespoonful to the square foot of space. If plants have already made their appearance, keep plant food away from the new shoots. Water in well. Give a second feeding when the buds appear.

Roses: Feed in the early spring, at the rate of one rounded tablespoonful to each square foot of space around the bush. It is important that this first application be made as soon as the roses start growth. When the first color shows in the buds, make a second feeding of half this quantity. Feed every 30 days until the middle of August.

Annuals sown directly in beds: Prepare the seedbed thoroughly and apply a pint of complete plant food to 30 square feet of space area. Rake this lightly into the soil, mixing well, before sowing seed. When buds appear, feed again, giving half this amount. Annuals transplanted from flats or cold frame: You may apply the

McNaughton Wins

New York, June 13 (AP)—Mrs. Harry McNaughton has added the Women's Eastern Golf Championship to her Long Island medal and match play titles The Manhasset (N. Y.) woman shot an 83 at the Westchester C. C. yesterday for a final score of 244 that was two shots better than Maureen Orcutt of Ridgewood, N. J., and Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I. Miss Orcutt, only one over par her last time out with a 79, then beat Miss Bauer for second place in a 10-hole playoff.

Skeleton Bares Crime

Finding of a skeleton furnished final proof to the police of Buenos Aires, Argentina, of a murder committed seven years ago. The disappearance of Vincente Persiane was reported in 1934, but it was not until two years ago that the police received an anonymous letter saying Persiane had been slain. Search began for an odd-job man, Di Blassi, and recently he was brought back from Paraguay. He confessed and led the police to the grave, which was under the kitchen of a new house built on the lot.

Throwing stones with accuracy, ten-year-old Gert Kastrol killed four baboons near Worcester, South Africa.
